HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS BRAVE NIGHT'S RAIN TO CHEER COLORFUL CORONATION PROCESSION

Judge Refuses To Block Election Set for June 8

INJUNCTION PLEA DENIED BY COURT AT DANIELSVILLE

Legislature's Action in Providing for Vote Held Entirely Constitutional by Franklin County Superior Judge Moseley.

GOVERNOR ELATED WHEN TOLD RULING

Similar Suits Yet To Be Heard in Cobb and Coffee Counties; High Court Review Unlikely.

Superior Judge Berry T. Moseley at Danielville yesterday upheld the constitutionality of the June 7 election in which the people will vote on constitutional amendments embodying the Rivers social security program.

Judge Moseley dissolved a temporary injunction preventing officials of Franklin county from paying out funds for the conduct of the election and dismissed a petition for a permanent injunction.

Visibly showing his elation, Governor Rivers said in Atlanta: "I am proud of this decision. It is what I expected."

Counsel for the plaintiffs could not be reached last night but they were expected to seek to get the matter before the supreme court on a fast bill of exceptions, hoping for a decision by the high tribunal before election day. However, inasmuch as the vote is set for three weeks from next Tuesday, it is not held likely the supreme court will have time to pass on the matter. At the hearing on the petition Attorney General Yeomans told the court he thought it unlikely the supreme court would get to pass on the suit.

Two Other Suits. Meanwhile the state department of law prepared to combat today a similar suit filed in Cobb county and filed a demurrer to a third filed in Coffee county on which a hearing is set for Saturday.

While the Moseley decision affects only Franklin county and the other suits involve only Cobb and Coffee counties, yesterday's decision was hailed by supporters of the Rivers program as an important step in the progress of the amendments.

Judge Moseley's ruling came after a hearing Saturday on a petition by Franklin county taxpayers who sought to enjoin expenditure of money in that county for holding the election. They challenged its legality.

The state of Georgia, through its attorney general, M. J. Yeomans, filed a formal demurrer to the petition. Judge Moseley's order sustained the demurrer.

This action had the effect of dismissing the petition.

"Only One Question." In his order, Judge Moseley said that in his opinion there was "only one question" for his decision. "That is whether or not the act

'Dead Woman,' Much Alive, Qualifies To Vote on June 8

Mrs. Sara E. Toney Revived to 'Life' by Correction of Clerk's Error.

A "dead" woman qualified yesterday with the Fulton board of registrars to vote in the June 8 special election.

That is, the official registration list records her as dead. She emphatically insists that she is very much alive. Registrars were convinced she isn't dead and qualified her.

The "dead" woman, Mrs. Sara E. Toney, of 21 Peachtree Hills avenue, read Monday morning's Constitution and decided it might be a good idea if she stopped by the registrar's office "just to see" that she was qualified and had paid her 1936 poll tax. She was certain she had done both.

"Am I Qualified?" Arriving at the office in the courthouse, Mrs. Toney informed the clerk who she was and asked if she was qualified.

The clerk stared at her, went to the registration books, looked, and then stared even harder. Mrs. Toney was frankly puzzled. The clerk conferred with an assistant. Then they both stared.

"What did you say your name was, please?" Mrs. Toney was asked.

"Mrs. Sara E. Toney (there is no 'h' in the name as I could never make that letter look very well), and I live at 21 Peachtree Hills avenue. I have voted in the Buckhead district for the past 13 years, ever since I moved to where I now reside. I am sure I remember registering and paying the poll tax."

The clerks just stared again. Finally, one said: Mrs. Toney, will you look at our record? I can't say what I wish."

Mrs. Toney looked. Across her name was the one word, "Dead."

"Well, young lady, maybe I should be dead, but I'm not," she commented.

Voting for Prohibition. Mrs. Toney said yesterday she would be forced to cast a vote to retain prohibition in Georgia, but that "if the prohibitionists would stop drinking liquor the whiskey problem would be settled."

How the "dead" woman would vote on amendments was not disclosed.

WPA MAY FURNISH 1,500 WORKMEN FOR SEWAGE LINE

Negotiations Now Under Way With County To Provide Material Will Make Possible Quick Finish of Huge Project.

LINE TO BE READY IN EIGHT MONTHS

Badly Needed Peachtree Creek Sewer To Be Ready for Service This Year Under New Plan.

Prospects that 1,500 WPA workers will be placed on construction work of the Peachtree creek sewer line within a short time was revealed yesterday while the sewer committee of city council was considering a proposal by Fulton county to assume a share in cost of sewage disposal.

L. B. Barrett, district WPA engineer, announced that 300 WPA employees will be put to work on the west end of the Peachtree creek sewer line to work toward the east and that negotiations are under way with the county to place 1,200 additional workers on the project. First of the workers are expected to begin construction of the outmost end of the sewer by June 1.

Engineers predicted the seven-and-one-half-foot sewer line will be completed in six or eight months if the additional workers are put on the job.

County to Give Material. Fulton county is to furnish material for the sewer while the WPA supplies labor and machinery. The first aid of the WPA will be on a stretch of 1,850 feet extending from the location of the Clayton disposal plant at the Chattahoochee river near the water works to a point near North Side drive where the Nancy creek sewer line, from Base Hospital No. 48, connects with the Peachtree sewer. Labor and machinery cost for this distance was estimated at $157,330, while the material will cost about $33,000.

Approximately three miles of sewer line remains to be completed from the Nancy creek line to the end of the sewer near Howell Mill road, which was built by the county with convict labor, from the present Peachtree creek disposal plant at the Bobby Jones golf course.

Barrett said some 1,200 additional men will be employed on the three miles remaining if negotiations are completed with the county to furnish the materials.

WPA TO RELEASE MEN FARMS NEED

Miss Shepperson Cites Fewer Labor Shortage Reports Than Ordinarily

Release by the Works Progress Administration of "specific workers" in any county in Georgia where it is definitely determined that the services are needed for farm work at "fair wages" was assured yesterday by Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia WPA administrator.

Miss Shepperson, commenting upon published reports of an "acute shortage of farm labor" in Georgia, said, in line with policies of the administration, all reports of shortage in labor were investigated thoroughly when received by WPA. She added that the number of such reports has been smaller this spring than usual at this season.

Return Greater. A larger proportionate decrease in the labor load of male workers on WPA projects in agricultural counties than in the more populous industrial counties was reported by Miss Shepperson. She said this indicated that farm laborers have been returning to private employment at a faster rate than industrial workers.

Since last spring a reduction of approximately 40 per cent in the number of men employed on projects in 152 counties outside the larger centers has been shown. Over the same period a decrease of only 26 1-2 per cent in the number of men employed in seven industrial counties—Fulton, Chat-ham, Bibb, Richmond, Muscogee, Floyd and Troup—was noted.

A labor inventory, as of April 30, this year, showed only 7,871

Basque Defenders Driven From Monte Bizcargui, Eight Miles From Bilbao

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, (Wednesday), May 12. (UP)—One thousand Loyalists were killed and 2,500 wounded in a Rebel offensive which drove Basque defenders from Monte Bizcargui less than eight miles from Bilbao, a Rebel stronghold.

Simultaneously part of Madrid was reported aflame after an all-day bombardment by Rebel General Francisco Franco's siege guns in the western hills.

The fall of Monte Bizcargui followed 48 hours of continuous fighting, the communists said, and placed the entire Larrabezua valley leading to the outskirts of Bilbao at the mercy of General Emilio's Rebel mercenaries.

Bizcargui is east and slightly north of Bilbao. The column attacking it was one of four Mola ordered against the eastern defenses of the Basque capital. Its possession placed Bilbao under the Rebel guns.

Hundreds were killed on other active fronts. Scores died in Madrid during the bombardment. After 250 shells poured into the capital during the day, the bombardment was resumed late last night.

Numerous fires broke out in scattered sections. Loyalist troops were reported to have fought their way into the streets of ancient Toledo, south of Madrid, for the first time since the dramatic siege of Alcazar fortress last September.

In the Guadalupe sector, northeast of Madrid, both Rebels and

Girl Who Believed Mother Dead Meets Her Here After 17 Years

A pathetic plea from a 21-year-old girl for aid in locating her two brothers and two sisters was answered yesterday when the girl was reunited with a mother whom she had believed dead for the past 17 years.

Nearly 18 years ago, Ruby Stricklin, daughter of Mrs. H. E. Farar, of 678 Gerard avenue, and her sister were placed in the De-catur Orphans' Home after their father died. Ruby was then 3 years old and her sister, Elizabeth, 10 years old.

The two sisters were adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Adair and taken into the Adair home.

In the meanwhile Mrs. Stricklin was married again and instigated a search for her two daughters. She located them living with the Adairs at a Mill street address.

A court battle followed. Mrs. Stricklin being awarded possession of Elizabeth, but Ruby, then only about 5 years old, refused to leave the Adairs, believing that her mother was dead.

Following the court decision the Adairs moved to Fullerton, Cal., taking Ruby with them.

After living with her foster parents for six years on the coast,

Artist Shows How London Will Look From the Air

Artist's conception of London from the air as it will appear today during the royal procession from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey and return, a distance of six miles. Near the middle left-hand margin is Buckingham Palace, from which the King and Queen will set forth. The processions will move down the Mall, passing St. James' Palace. Beyond is Marlborough House, now occupied by Queen Mary. Passing under Admiralty Arch, the procession turns into Whitehall. Westminster Abbey has been the place of coronation of English sovereigns for centuries. After the King and Queen are crowned, they will ride in the state coach past the houses of parliament along the Victoria embankment into Northumberland avenue and into Trafalgar Square, past the National Gallery and into Pall Mall, St. James' and Piccadilly, turning at Piccadilly Circus into Regent street. After passing along Oxford street, the procession will turn at the Marble Arch into Hyde Park, and return to Buckingham Palace down Constitution Hill.

MILLER REVEALS WIDER ROAD PLAN

State Road Board Also To Resurface and Beautify 'Roosevelt Highway.'

Chairman W. L. Miller of the State Highway Board yesterday announced the allotment of $150,000 to be used within the next 90 days for the widening, resurfacing and beautification of the Franklin D. Roosevelt highway from Red Oak to Palmetto.

The board chairman made his announcement to a delegation of more than 300 citizens of the southern section of Fulton county who pledged themselves to aid in the beautification of the highway.

Miller said the road would be widened to 22 feet and surfaced with a material yet to be selected. He said at present the board is unable to complete the project as far south as the Coweta county line, but promised this would be done within the next 12 months.

C. Homer Gullatt, of Union City, president of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Highway Association, speaking in behalf of the delegation, told the highway board chairman his group planned to ask each of the 48 states of the Union and every foreign country to present shrubbery to aid in the beautification of the group.

The delegation found a warm ally in the person of Mrs. E. D. Rivers, wife of the Governor, who made her first appearance before the highway board in presenting a plea in support of the beautification program. Mrs. Rivers is a garden enthusiast of state-wide fame. She told Chairman Miller she believed the Fulton county project should be completed not only because of the beautifying program but also because of the density of traffic on the road.

"This highway bears the most

George's Mother Wears Old Gown At Coronation

LONDON, May 11.—(P)—Queen Mother Mary, wearing a $500,000 diadem on her majestic head, will not wear a new dress when she sees her son crowned tomorrow in Westminster Abbey.

A close friend of the British monarch's mother disclosed Queen Mary chose her coronation gown from her elaborate wardrobe, rather than order a new one.

The Queen Mother nevertheless will be a regal figure at the Abbey ceremonies, for she will wear her collection of diamonds estimated to be worth $2,000,000. Her diadem is part of her own 1911 coronation crown.

The dress she chose is embroidered with silver and diamonds in a cascading design of roses and fuchsias. Its small sleeves of gold lace are edged with tiny rose leaves, and over the dress she will wear a purple velvet robe with a five-foot train lined and edged with gold embroidery and ermine.

The reversed Queen Mother, departing from precedent in seeing her son crowned, is taking no

Engagement Stone Is Her Favorite Gem; Edward Will Hear Coronation.

MONTES, France, May 11.—(UP)—The Duke of Windsor, an exile from the coronation festivities that might have been his, tonight placed an emerald engagement ring upon the finger of the American-born divorcee for whose love he gave up his throne.

Edward and Mrs. Wallis Warfield strolled together in the arboreal grounds of the Chateau de Cande, looking ahead—not to the pageant of the coronation in London tomorrow at which he will be the only missing member of British royalty, but to their early wedding.

The engagement ring glittering on Mrs. Warfield's left hand was an oblong emerald baguette set in platinum.

Scotland Yard Makes Final Check of Abbey; Police Try To Clear Way for Glittering Parade.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 12.—(Wednesday.)—More than a million persons jammed London's coronation parade route early today while unflagging dancers capered in the misty streets until after dawn.

A heavy cloak of fog lifted somewhat, after an earlier rain stopped, but the threat of rain was still in the air.

Hundreds slept on the soggy grass in Hyde park, keeping close to their points of vantage along the line of procession. Others, completely fagged out, unrolled blankets and slumbered on the curbsides. Scores of dancers, meanwhile, frenziedly kept awake and skipped along the streets, determined to dance the great day in.

In the depths of Buckingham palace King George VI and Queen Elizabeth attempted to snatch a little sleep in preparation for their day of dedication.

An army of traffic policemen began closing off the route of the coronation procession, attempting to resolve the greatest traffic jam of London's history into a semblance of order.

Humanity jammed and crushed along the entire six-mile route. Some appeared to sleep standing, but the increasing din, as hundreds of thousands clamored in the scene, made sleep for most impossible.

Rain Forecast. The forecast of scattered rain for the big day did not daunt the throngs. They arrived on the scene bearing periscopes, binoculars, cameras, recorders, flasks, mattresses.

The musical instruments were busy. The flasks were busy. Dense crowds swayed to the rhythm of patriotic songs and popular tunes of the day.

Nelson's column climbed into the black heavens, its base completely hidden under swarming humanity. Crowds had been collecting there before dark. Piccadilly Circus and Hyde Park were jammed.

Police patrolled the still empty stands—with reserved seats—along the Mall looking for stow-aways.

Amid the roaring tumult, with constant shouts of "God Save the King!" rolling up to the gates of Buckingham Palace, the royal family were fortunate if they were able to sleep.

Dancing Throngs. Fog settled heavily over the city but failed to dampen the spirits of the singing and dancing throngs. The cold, damp air caused blankets to unfurl. Parents dared the press with small children in their arms. Scotland Yard detectives made a final inspection of the recesses of Westminster Abbey, scene of the day's most solemn rites, looking for possible cranks or gate-crashers.

The war office announced not a single cloak would be worn over the brilliant uniforms of the soldiery during today's parade, rain or shine.

Without Bus Service.
It became certain London would celebrate the coronation without bus service. The strike of the 25,000 busmen continued, but fears other transport systems would be halted were dispelled when leaders of the street car and trolley-bus workers' unions refused to join the walkout.

A stately and solemn procession moved through the streets to Westminster Abbey yesterday afternoon in a final preface to the coronation of George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

$30,000,000 Regalia.
Mounted life guards with white plumes nodding from burnished helmets flanked a state coach in which rested the $30,000,000 in crown regalia and jewels.

They were placed in the dimly-lit Jerusalem chamber of the abbey and yeomen of the guard began night-long vigil until George and his Scottish Queen Elizabeth are anointed with holy oil, receive the crowns of gold and the scepters of power and justice in age-old ritual.

The gray stone abbey itself was quiet, a hall of memories and a symbol of the link between church and crown. Lights shown on splendid blue carpets, on gold and blue brocade, on gold curtains and hangings—all new.

They were reflected in dancing stars of light from jewels, diamonds and rubies and emeralds encrusted in the royal crowns, the swords of state, in splendid diamonds.

Confusion Reigns Now.
But outside was the confusion of celebration.

The empire was ready to put a joyous finish to the months which saw the abdication of one King and his self-exile for love of Wallis Warfield.

The 41-year-old George himself sounded the theme of forgetfulness of Edward VIII in replying to the loyal greetings from the empire's prime ministers at Buckingham palace.

He did not mention the brief reign of his brother, but pledged himself to follow the footsteps of his father, George V.

George's Statement.
"I stand on the threshold of a new life," he said, while his smiling Queen stood at his side and listened intently. "Heavy are the responsibilities that have so suddenly and unexpectedly come upon me—but it gives me great courage to know that I can count on your unfailing help and affection. For my part, I shall do my utmost to carry on my father's work for the welfare of our great empire."

The heavy rains destroyed some of the city's cheaper decorations, but did not touch the spirit of the celebrants.

As crowds swelled along the coronation route, shopkeepers began barricading windows. The Duke of Gloucester as senior prince of the royal family took over the duties of entertainment, while his brother-King and Queen Elizabeth rested.

Diplomats Dined.
The Duke and Duchess last night gave a banquet to foreign envoys from more than 50 nations in St. James' palace, walking a bypath through their York house residence to avoid crowds. Restaurants and cabarets were

100 MILLION WORTH OF GEMS TO GLEAM IN CORONATION TREK

Display Will Be Most Dazzling in Modern History.

LONDON, May 11.—(UP)—The most dazzling display of costly clothing and jewelry in modern memory—$100,000,000 worth of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and other gems, and nearly $1,000,000 worth of wearing apparel—was hauled out of cases and cabinets tonight for tomorrow's coronation.

More than 600 peacocks, each with robes, gowns and furs worth, on an average, $1,500, will form part of the procession into Westminster Abbey.

Topped in sheer magnificence by the ivory-tinted gown which Queen Elizabeth will wear—a gold embroidered creation with emblems of the British empire in diamonds, showing the rose of Tudor, the thistle of Scotland, shamrock of Ireland and leek of Wales, as well as the Canadian maple leaf, Australian wattle, New Zealand fern and Indian lotus—the peacocks will form the most brilliant pageant of the century.

Each will wear robes averaging 10 pounds in weight. Most will wear ermine robes, although several reportedly are using rabbit fur to save money.

India's potentates, visiting royalty, and peeresses of England will offer, for the trained eye of a courtier, the most exciting competition in fancy dresswear in a quarter of a century, probably exceeding in splendor the coronation of George IV in 1811.

Six train-bearers will carry Queen Elizabeth's six-yard train of rich purple velvet, outlined with Russian ermine.

It will be the 36th time in 871 years that old Westminster has seen the coronation of a new monarch.

Edward Listens.
Only two other monarchs since William have not been crowned there—Edward the Fifth who was slain in the tower of London and Edward of Windsor who renounced the throne, and who listened by radio in his French retreat last night to the celebration that might have honored him—but for his love for a woman the empire would not receive as queen.

Guns fired through London at the moment of crowning and assembled spectators will roar "God Save the King" in a cry echoing throughout the empire in a world-circling salute.

Following the processional back to Buckingham, the newly-crowned monarch and his queen will appear on the balcony before the crowds.

Then in the evening the King will broadcast to the empire and crowds will turn to another celebration.

Twenty-five thousand policemen and 32,500 soldiers will line tomorrow's line of march. Hundreds of mounted police will aid. Men in the army signal corps are co-operating to keep the procession moving.

King Goes To Bed Happy To Know He'll Dress Self

LONDON, May 11.—(UP)—Albert Frederick Arthur George of Windsor, who will ask 400,000,000 British subjects tomorrow to "ratify" him as their King, went to bed early tonight—thankful that at last a King can put on his own undershirt and pants on Coronation Day.

The lord great chamberlain, the Earl of Ancaster, fought a losing battle for his hereditary right. But King George VI, climbing into his bed in Buckingham Palace at 10 o'clock, tipped off the court of coronation claims he'd rather put on his own pants.

So the court of claims struck a bargain whereby the lord great chamberlain will receive a fee of $1,500 and 40 yards—or ell—of crimson velvet for his coronation robes.

According to ancient ritual the Earl should awaken the King at the crack of dawn tomorrow.

Then he should help the King wash his hands and face, strip off the royal nightgown, pull on the royal undershirt, and take whatever struck his fancy among the royal chamber's furnishings as his fee.

Instead, a royal valet will knock gently on the King's door early tomorrow, lay out the clothes and announce that the royal bath has been drawn.

CHINA 'CARVE-UP' HIT BY 'LITTLE CABINET'

Newspapers Give Discussions Same Prominence as Coronation News.

(Copyright 1937, by United Press.)
SHANGHAI, Wednesday, May 12.—Japanese press dispatches from Tokyo today said that the "little cabinet"—the ministers of war, navy and foreign affairs—met yesterday "and discussed frankly proposals for Anglo-Japanese co-operation in the economic development of China."

The three ministers also considered measures "to end the current belief in China that Japan and Britain intend to divide China into spheres of economic influence."

Chinese newspapers printed the dispatches with the same prominence they gave the coronation of King George and, at the same time, said editorially that "the elaborate disclaimers appearing in the Japanese capital can be interpreted only as tending to confirm our worst fears—namely, that Britain and Japan, in the guise of some understanding to respect each other's economic interests in China, really are planning virtually to divide our country amongst themselves."

ROME, May 11.—(AP)—Protestant members of the British colony here suddenly acquired a great interest in the Catholic press today as Italy's boycott of British news banished the London dateline from all papers in Rome except the Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano.

With Italian correspondents recalled from London and all but three British papers banned in Italy, the Osservatore obligingly printed a long account of coronation preparations.

Inquiry as to whether Edward would send a coronation message to his brother, King George VI, tomorrow brought an evasive reply from the Duke's spokesman, Herman L. Rogers.

Edward and his fiancé, arranging their marriage for June 1 or June 2, will listen to the radio broadcast of the coronation in the large lounge room of the chateau's guest house—formerly the hunting lodge—with other guests at the Chateau de Conde.

Newspapermen were informed that the Duke, anxious to do nothing that would detract from the glory of his brother's coronation day, would have no statement of any kind tomorrow.

RIOTING, GUN FIRE SWEEP DUBLIN IN CORONATION PROTEST

HEADS ARE CRACKED AS POLICE CHARGE INTO REPUBLICANS

Mobs Object To Crowning George as 'King of Ireland.'

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 11.—Rioting and pistol shooting swept Dublin streets tonight when the "old Irish Republican army" demonstrated in protest against tomorrow's coronation of King George VI as "King of Ireland."

Many demonstrators were taken to hospitals after Free State police charged with swinging batons.

Shots were fired and shellshells cracked heads as the police, acting under orders from Defense Minister Patrick Routledge, attempted to prevent the Republicans from holding a parade.

"Repudiate Coronation."

The anti-imperialists sought to "repudiate the coronation of the English King as the King of Ireland."

The parade was to have passed through the center of the city, and thousands had assembled for the demonstration of Free State independence when police charged.

Meanwhile, small Union Jacks, coronation souvenirs, and King George VI mementos sold freely in the streets, although several vendors were attacked and mauled.

The entire central portion of Dublin seethed with excitement when the rioting broke out shortly after 10 p. m. (5 p. m. Atlanta time).

Follows De Valera Plea.

The rioting followed the appearance of President Eamon De Valera in the house of parliament where he moved for a second reading of his new Republican draft of the Free State constitution which refuses to recognize even the existence of King George VI.

Although tomorrow will be a national holiday throughout the British empire, and there will be marked celebrations in every country of the crown, the coronation will pass unnoticed in the Irish Free State.

Chart Shows Procedure of Actual Crowning

This is the coronation theater in Westminster Abbey. The Queen enters first. (Dotted line marks her progress.) She goes to chair of the King. From the chair (see solid line), the King goes to the altar to receive the oath from the archbishop. He kneels, signs copy of oath and kisses Bible. In a historic chair before the altar the King then removes robes and is anointed by the archbishop. He then goes to the coronation chair, where archbishop places St. Edward's crown on the King's head. Bearing scepter, the King takes his place on the throne on the dais to receive the homage of peers. The Queen then goes to the altar to be anointed and crowned. From the altar she goes to dais, makes obeisance to King and is seated on throne, ending the ceremony.

NO NEWS OF DUKE IN LONDON'S PRESS

But, Reporter Finds People High and Low Have Not Forgotten.

LONDON, May 11.—(AP)—The wheels of empire slowed, the flag-mantled capital dripped with rain and people resting for the coronation schedule had a last lingering chance today to think guardedly of the man who might have been crowned tomorrow and of the American-born woman he chose instead.

Not a single newspaper today, flooded by every detail of coronation, even mentioned the dramatic part played by the man who might have been crowned Edward VIII tomorrow night but for his love for the woman from Baltimore, twice-divorced Wallis Warfield.

But people standing in the rain watching decorations wilt and ink-stains run down the faces of pictures of their majesties, George and Elizabeth, people in high places and low still are thinking of and discussing the Duke who waits in France for this turmoil to subside before his own wedding.

Down in the lower sections of London, particularly where Windsor gave the poverty-stricken hope by a militant attitude in behalf of the Welsh miners, people shook their heads as they took in flags and dried them and pressed them out fresh and waited until tomorrow before putting them up again, hoping the rain would cease.

CORONATION RITUAL IS TOLD IN DETAIL

Ceremony Will Make George 40th Monarch of England.

LONDON, (Wednesday), May 12. (UP)—Here is what is happening today as George VI receives consecration and anointment with hallowed oil as the 40th monarch of England.

The scene of coronation is the high altar of Westminster Abbey. Cosmo Gordon Lang, 72-year-old Archbishop of Canterbury, administers the religious ritual endowing George with the majesty of kingship.

The King first ascends the altar, and is divested of his outer robes, and takes a seat on the seven-century-old throne, in which lies the stone of Scotland, hereditary symbol of Scottish kings until it was captured by the English.

Draws Cross With Oil.

The golden canopy is held over the King's head while the dean of Westminster pours into a silver spoon a fluid made of oils of orange flower, cinnamon, jasmine, sesame, civet and ambergris.

The Archbishop then draws across the palms, chest and forehead of the King the consecrating crosses.

The dean of Westminster then places about the King's shoulders a sleeveless, linen garment known as the colubrium sidonis, a close-fitting girdle of gold cloth and the superintending, and a golden girdle.

The sixth phase of the ceremony is the actual consecration. The crown of St. Edward is brought from the altar by the dean of Westminster. The Archbishop of Canterbury holds the heavy crown above the King's head and adjusts it.

103-Gun Salute.

The King's scholars of Westminster, who hold an ancient right to be first to cheer the new monarch, shout: "God save the King!"

Immediately the abbey is filled with the noise of cheering peers, and 103 guns boom a royal salute from the tower of London and St. James Park.

George becomes "His Most Excellent Majesty George VI, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India," reigning over an empire of 500,000,000 people, covering one-fourth of the earth's habitable surface.

Government Vetoes Plans for Kent To Attend Wedding.

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)

LONDON, May 11.—The gaiety of King George VI's coronation was marred tonight by a clash between members of the royal family and the government over the marriage of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield.

The royal family wants to be represented officially at the wedding of the "King in exile" and the American-born divorcee but the government has put its foot down on any such revival of public interest in the Duke.

FRANCE BARS RADIO TO DUKE'S WEDDING

PARIS, May 11.—(AP)—The French government made it known tonight that it will permit no radio broadcast of the wedding of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield, assuming it is held in France, as expected.

A foreign office spokesman disclosed the application of an American system for use of French facilities to broadcast an account of the wedding had been turned down "on grounds of courtesy."

The government's decision was tantamount to forbidding it. Certain members of the royal family remained adamant, however, and the situation is deadlocked, the United Press was reliably informed.

When Mrs. Warfield's divorcee she changed her name legally yesterday from Mrs. Simpson—became final the royal family remained and decided to send a representative to the wedding.

The Duke of Kent, closest to Edward of all the royal family with the exception, perhaps, of the princess royal, and his duchess were designated.

But government leaders, dismayed at the glare of publicity given to Mrs. Warfield's divorce, absolute and her reunion with Edward, informed the King it would be "inadvisable" to send a representative.

King George VI and other members of the royal family were understood to be taking the position that, after all, it is a family affair and that Edward remains a duke.

MAN SLAIN BY SON LAID TO FINAL REST

Arthur W. Everett Is Buried in East View Cemetery.

Final rites for Arthur W. Everett, whose slaying by his 16-year-old son was termed "justifiable homicide" by a coroner's jury, were held at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the chapel of A. S. Turner, with the son, Arthur W. Everett Jr., and the boy's mother in attendance.

The boy, who fired a pistol bullet into his father's brain when the elder Everett threatened Mrs. Everett with a kitchen knife, appeared calm at the rites, which were conducted by the Rev. K. Olin White, pastor of Kirkwood Baptist church.

The tragedy occurred in the Everett home at 2022 Warwick place, N. E., early Monday morning. Young Everett surrendered to police, accompanied by the Rev. Mr. White. The coroner's jury held the boy was protecting his mother.

The elder Everett was a veteran government meat inspector. Burial was in East View cemetery.

REALTOR GIVEN VERDICT IN CONTRACT LITIGATION

A verdict for the defendant was returned by a Fulton county superior court jury last night in the case of F. L. Bentley, East Point, versus Mrs. Kathleen C. Dann, Atlanta real estate woman, and five corporations controlled by Mrs. Dann.

Bentley, suing for $465.05, plus interest, expenses and attorney fees, totaling about $1,200, sought to prove irregular handling of real estate purchase contracts with Mrs. Dann's corporations. The defense contended Bentley brought his suit in an effort to escape terms of a purchase contract.

Kathleen Norris Writes of Beauty Created by Coronation Decorations

Each Street Demonstrates Personality by Taste in Ornamentation; Incredible Loveliness of Westminster Described.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

LONDON, May 11.—(By Wire)—Walking along green Victoria embankment, I took a look at the decorations in Whitehall, which are perhaps the most beautiful in the city. It was a softly foggy morning, with whistles sounding on the gray river and not a breath of air stirring the wet, new green leaves and the millions of flags that are filling the city with unwonted beauty and color.

Oxford street has its own taste in ornamentation; St. James street is handsomer, if not quite so gay; Whitehall is the loveliest of all perhaps because they have used little more than flags and flowers. All the deep stone window sills have been turned into gardens; deep banks of fresh white daisies and scarlet geraniums, with delicate green asparagus for a background, or masses of pale blue and pale pink hydrangeas, seemingly more ethereal than ever against the white-streaked black of the old stone walls.

In Buckingham gate there is a corner house painted a pale yellow on yellow brick; at each window there is a bank of pure lavender flowers, heliotrope, hydrangea and lilies. No one passes that house without a gasp of pleasure, but indeed it isn't the only one or even one of a hundred London streets that arrest one and hold one spellbound in these fairy-tale days.

Westminster Abbey has been closed to visitors for weeks, but I had my purple card for the dress rehearsal, and although there were quiet crowds gathered at each entrance, there was no confusion, and at 9:30 we were promptly admitted.

The abbey, through whose dim arches and aisles many stately of the general assembly of Georgia set out in the original petition dated and approved by the Governor February 24, 1937, creating and establishing a statewide general election in addition to those elections now provided for under existing laws and the other matters as is set out in said act and the date of holding the same under said act is constitutional or unconstitutional.

"The court after giving the same full consideration is of the opinion that said act is constitutional and is of full force and effect."

"Therefore, it is considered, ordered and adjudged by the court that the demurrers filed by the defendant herein be and the same are hereby sustained and that said original petition and the amendment thereto be and the same is hereby dismissed."

"It is further ordered and adjudged by the court that the remaining order heretofore granted be and the same is hereby dissolved and that the same have no further force and effect."

Important Issues Involved.

Five constitutional amendments embodying the Rivers program for social security and permitting the general assembly to convene itself in emergencies were involved in the litigation.

Governor Rivers was at the capitol when informed of the decision.

"Of course I am proud the judge of the circuit held the act constitutional and sustained the position of the State Law Department," the Governor said. "The act is entirely legal."

"While all of these injunction suits affect those counties only in which they are brought, it heartens me to know the court looks upon the act favorably."

"I am proud this decision makes it possible for the people of Georgia to vote on their own constitution."

"I expected the decision and had no reason to look for the courts to overrule the law, since the best legal minds we could call upon told us before the act was passed it was legal."

Backed by Talmadgeites.

The Franklin county petition was brought by S. E. Vandiver, of Lavonia, a colonel on the military staff of former Governor Talmadge and a Talmadge appointee on the old board of control, and others and was presented to the court by George Goode, of Carnesville, an assistant attorney general during the Talmadge administration.

Judge J. H. Hawkins, of the Blue Ridge circuit, will hear the Cobb county case at Marietta today. The case in Coffee county will be heard by Judge M. D. Dickerson, of Douglas, on Saturday at Douglas.

Judge Orders Mae West To 'Come Up and See Me'

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(AP) Superior Judge Wilson reversed Mae West's famous invitation today, and ordered her to come up and see him. He stipulated 10 a. m., sharp, May 19.

The blousy blonde actress was summoned to show cause why she should not answer questions pertaining to the suit of Frank Wallace, vaudeville actor, who wants his asserted marriage to her recognized legally.

Last Saturday, Miss West declined to talk, "on advice of counsel," when she appeared in the offices of Wallace's lawyer. The attorney, Avery Blount, was granted a summons today.

50,000 AMERICANS IN LONDON FOR DAY

Less Than Score Will Witness Ceremonies at Westminster.

LONDON, May 11.—(AP)—More than 50,000 Americans are in London tonight for the coronation—but less than a score of them will see the ceremonies in Westminster Abbey tomorrow.

Those who will look on while the new monarch is crowned are members of the United States embassy staff and the special coronation delegation from the United States and the wives of five of them.

Besides these there will be Lady Astor, the former Nancy Langhorne, of Virginia, the first woman to take a seat in the British parliament. She has held that place since 1919.

In addition, a usually reliable source said, J. P. Morgan, the financier, will be there as one of King George's distinguished guests. There was no official confirmation or denial of this.

The remainder of the 50,000 Americans will get their view of the coronation festivities from curbstones places they have guarded jealously for hours or from vantage points which have cost some of them as much as $250.

The 15-minute talk will be re-broadcast by hundreds of stations throughout the world which will intercept the powerful short waves from London. In New York the outlets will be WABC, WEAF, WOR AND WJZ.

SHIPSTEAD JOINS COURT PLAN FOES

Senate Veteran Declares He Sees No Reason for Enlarging Bench.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—The foes of the Roosevelt court reorganization proposal added Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, to their ranks tonight and claimed "at least 52 senate votes" against that measure.

Shipstead, a veteran of the senate and one of its two Farmer-Labor members, returned to the city today from a long vacation and had no time in taking sides in Washington's great controversy.

"I am not in favor of expanding the court by six," he told reporters. "I see no reason for any increase in the court."

The opposition claim of 52 votes was promptly disputed by the supporters of the bill, who contended they had "at least 51" votes. (There are 96 votes in the senate.)

SENATE COMMITTEE TO PROBE CHARGES AGAINST NEW SOLON

Tennessee Declares Senator Berry Is Not Entitled To Hold Office.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—A petition charging that Senator George L. Berry, Democrat, Tennessee, is not entitled to hold office because of "allegations concerning his moral turpitude" went into records of the senate privileges and elections committee today.

H. Carlyle Lowry, who identified himself as an attorney from Maryville, Tenn., filed the document. He charged that Berry President Roosevelt's industrial co-ordinator and head of labor's non-partisan league, had been sued in Knoxville, and a judgment obtained against him.

"The suit," Lowry declared, "is said to have been brought for an accounting of funds due the pressmen's union, which were misappropriated by said George Berry. Berry has been head of the international Pressmen's Union for years.

Berry, sworn in as senator yesterday to succeed the late Nathan I. Bachman, declined to comment. His friends described the charges as "groundless and political."

Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, chairman of the elections committee of which Berry is now a member, agreed to consider the Woman Changes Mind, Saves Mate Whipping

BALTIMORE, May 11.—(AP)—A last-minute change of mind by Mrs. Henry Catterson today saved her husband from a five-lash session at Maryland's whipping post.

Catterson, convicted of beating his wife on May 2 with his fists, was sentenced by Judge O'Dunne to 30 days in jail.

Judge O'Dunne asked Mrs. Catterson if she concurred in a whipping sentence.

"I do," she answered.

The judge then said he would give Mrs. Catterson a short while to consider her decision. An hour and a half later he called the couple to his chambers. The pair beamed at each other as they emerged from the judicial rooms.

"They kissed and made up," said Judge O'Dunne, suspending both sentences.

BROWNING DENIES CHARGES AGAIN

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 11.—(AP)—Governor Gordon Browning reiterated tonight that President Roosevelt did not discuss "individuals" with him prior to the appointment of a successor to the late Senator Nathan I. Bachman.

M. Carlyle Lowry, in a petition filed with the senate contesting the eligibility of Senator Berry to hold the office, said "it might be to your advantage to ascertain why a confidant of the President phoned the Governor of Tennessee before your former colleague was duly buried that the President wanted to see him regarding a successor."

BAPTISTS GATHER AT NEW ORLEANS

Pastors Make Pleas for Personal Purity and Personal Piety.

NEW ORLEANS, May 11.—(AP)—Members of the Woman's Missionary Union and pastors from 18 states and the District of Columbia debated missionary activities at home and abroad today in a gathering preceding the annual meeting of the Southern Baptist convention.

Capitol View Baptist church, of Atlanta, was on the honor roll of churches reaching A-1 standard in Woman's Missionary Union work, while Georgia reported 31 other churches in the honor group.

Miss Mary Christian, of Atlanta, corresponding secretary of the Georgia W. M. U., and Mrs. Ben Thompson, vice president, submitted reports showing that Baptist women in Georgia contributed $183,920.98 to missionary and educational purposes.

Miss Miriam Robinson, also of Atlanta, was on the program with Young People leaders of other states. Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of Druid Hills Baptist church, Atlanta, will speak tomorrow morning on the program of the pastors' conference.

A goal of $120,000 for the Annie W. Armstrong Offering for Home Mission was adopted at the session tonight. The offering, to be made next March, will be administered by the Home Mission Board of Atlanta, of which Dr. J. B. Lawrence is executive secretary-treasurer.

At the pastors' conference, leaders made pleas for personal purity and personal piety, a spiritual passion for "persons who are lost," and a joyful religion.

Dr. M. E. Dodd, chairman, told of growing interest in religion he noted on a recent tour of 27 countries.

The orient particularly is being Christianized," he said, "to my dismay much more so than our country."

"I can safely say that 75 per cent of the fundamental laws of present-day China are based on Christian ideas. It is a coincidence that China gained these final Christian laws just when America was losing hers through repeal of prohibition."

Dr. Robert G. Lee, of Memphis, Tenn., urged his hearers not to use sinners while giving sermons.

"Preach the word of God and keep your eyes off the clock," he counseled.

The work of the board occupied the entire session last night, as the French, Mexican and Chinese fields in the south were featured.

Mrs. Frank Burney, of Madison, Ga., presented a report of the Margaret Fund, a fund used to educate children of missionaries.

male manual workers on WPA projects in 152 counties out of a total of 18,568 workers of this classification in the state. In 13 counties, no manual workers were on WPA rolls at the time the report was prepared.

The total employment load of relief workers of all occupational classifications on WPA projects in Georgia now is approximately 29,000, including about 9,000 women workers, Miss Shepperson said.

SEWER LINE WORK TO EMPLOY 1,500

Fulton county has already agreed to build the Peachtree creek sewer line, section No. 1. The Clayton plant is to be completed by December 15, it was said, but would be of little use unless the Peachtree creek No. 1 sewer was finished.

WPA officials said men will be put to work on this important sewer as fast as other WPA projects are completed. A number of other sewers and disposal plants, including the Utopy plant and the Peachtree creek sewer line, are just about completed. Work was finished recently on sewers leading from Emory University and Druid Hills sections. The Peachtree creek sewer will be 29,000 feet long when completed in about two or three weeks.

A proposal by Fulton county to pay one-third of the cost of operating the present sewage disposal plant is completed and then to take over full operation of the Clayton plant and the Peachtree creek sewer line as its share of the duty of disposing of sewage was considered by the sewer committee of city council yesterday, but action was deferred.

Councilman Cecil W. Hester and Councilman J. Allen Couch decried the city's estimated cost of part of charges made by the county for taps on the north side sewer line. (The city now charges a fee to tap), while Councilman John T. Marler objected to a city-county salary arrangement for William A. Hansell, assistant chief of construction in charge of sewers, who would oversee the Clayton plant for the county after it was taken over by Fulton.

Present Costs. The county agreed to operate the Clayton plant while the city continues operation of the Utopy, South river and Intrenchment creek plants. Present cost of operating all disposal plants is about $25,000 a year, of which the county agreed to pay one-third until the Clayton plant is completed.

Engineers estimated the county would have to pay out $50,000 or more a year to operate the Clayton plant alone when finished and said it will be about two-thirds the cost of operating the metropolitan sewer system disposal plants when they are completed.

Alderman Frank H. Reynolds favored accepting the county's proposal. Mayor Hartsfield said it seemed the best the city could do. Marler objected to Hansell receiving a salary of $5000 for engineering supervision for the city and county. He gets $400 a month now. Reynolds said the city should pay him $250 and the county a like amount to supervise the enlarged system.

CONSTITUTION NIGHT HELD AT LAKEWOOD

About 400 Employees Attend as Guests of Southeastern Fair Association.

About 400 employees of The Constitution and members of their families were honor guests at a party given by the Southeastern Fair Association last night at Lakewood park, in observation of "Constitution night."

A wide variety of entertainment, with Mike Benton, president of the Southeastern Fair Association, as host, kept many of the guests on the carnival grounds until a late hour. Mrs. Ed Rivers, wife of the Governor, attended to the party, which was a barbecue dinner at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Benton acted as master of ceremonies.

Following the dinner, the guests assembled at the softball diamond at 8:30 o'clock to watch a softball game between members of The Constitution's advertising staff and The Constitution's circulation department.

After this highlight activity, the entire carnival facilities of Lakewood were opened to the guests. The skating rink was closed to outsiders from 10 o'clock until closing time at midnight for a "Constitution skating party," and the other rides, shows and similar amusements of the park gave the members of the party "free rides."

PARKER ACCUSED OF VISITING BRUNO

Wendel Testifies He Was Asked To Aid in Saving Convicted Kidnap.

NEWARK, N. J., May 11.—(AP)—A reputed visit by Ellis H. Parker to Bruno Hauptmann's death house cell in Trenton prison was mentioned today in the kidnap conspiracy trial of the Burlington county detective chief and his son, Ellis, Jr.

The reference was made by Paul H. Wendel during testimony relating to efforts assertedly made by Parker to save Hauptmann from going to the electric chair for the Lindbergh baby kidnap-murder.

"Did you ever ask Anna Bading (Parker's secretary) why she was so interested in Hauptmann?" Wendel was asked by United States Attorney Quinn.

"Yes," she said she and Parker had been to see Hauptmann in his cell and had taken a statement," Wendel replied.

Wendel declared that on January 10, 1936, shortly before the first date set for Hauptmann's execution, he received from Mrs. Bading a coded plea for help in saving Hauptmann. Three days later, he said, he gave Parker "information" on the Lindbergh case, newspaper and an astrology magazine. Two days later Hauptmann was saved temporarily by a 30-day reprieve from Governor Harold G. Hoffman.

MOTHER, DAUGHTER ARE REUNITED HERE

Ruby left them and decided "to go it on her own."

For the past seven years she has been living in Sacramento, Cal., still believing her mother dead, but, in the meanwhile attempting to locate two sisters and two brothers in Atlanta.

Appeals to Hornsby. She took her problem to A. C. McAllister, chief of police in Sacramento, who suggested she send Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby a letter asking him to aid her in locating her brothers and sisters.

Chief Hornsby assigned detectives to the case and asked the three Atlanta newspapers for aid.

Last week Mrs. Farar, the former Mrs. Stricklin, read the story of the plea of the California girl and dispatched a telegram to her. She received a letter from a girl she "knew to be my little girl" saying that she wanted to come home, but could not afford the transportation costs.

Friends and neighbors of Mrs. Farar in Atlanta took up a collection, bought the California girl a ticket to Atlanta and last night she arrived at police headquarters with her mother.

Miss Stricklin said she did not recognize her parent, but readily recognized her sister, Elizabeth, who is now Mrs. Frank Gittens.

"It sure feels good to see mother again and I'll never leave her again," she said.

Some, he added, had said it would come in 1939.

Says Time Is Now.

"With the depression back of us, now is the time to avoid unnecessary expenditures until we can bring our outgo and our income within line," he declared.

Senator King, Utah Democrat, agreed with Tydings, shouting that administration spending policy "crackles with disaster."

A short time before Senator McGill, Kansas Democrat, presiding over the senate, had overruled Senator Clark, Missouri Democrat, who raised a point of order demanding to know by what authority the senate appropriations committee introduced authorization of the Gilbertsville dam in the second deficiency appropriation bill.

Senate Recesses.

Controversy grew to such heat that the senate recessed overnight without reaching a vote on authorization of the dam, and debate was expected to continue most of tomorrow.

By a 224-to-34 standing vote the house accepted an amendment imposing a two-year limit on extension of the Civilian Conservation Corps. The amendment was offered by Representative Lamm, Texas Democrat, during debate on a bill embracing President Roosevelt's recommendation that CCC be made permanent.

This was the first major rebuff the house has aimed at the President this session.

During the senate debate on the big dam, Senator Clark contended that the proposal was out of time with "economy talk."

THIEVES TAKE CABLE AT CITY AUDITORIUM

Two burglaries thought to have occurred Monday night, were reported to police yesterday.

Oscar Williamson, manager of the city auditorium, reported the building had been broken into and 1,000 feet of copper cable, valued at $200, stolen.

Owen M. Gardner, operating a sandwich shop at 589 Highland avenue, reported his establishment had been entered and that he had missed $29.05 worth of cigars, cigarettes, chewing gum, etc.

Police are investigating both cases.

DICTATORSHIPS HIT BY BISHOP MANNING

Church Leader Asks Laymen To Defend U. S. Democracy.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—Bishop William T. Manning called upon the Christian church today "to oppose with our whole strength any measure or proposals which leads the way from democracy toward personal government and absolute executive power."

Addressing the 154th convention of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York, Bishop Manning said "there is no situation or problem in our land which cannot be met and solved by the orderly processes of democracy as provided by our constitution."

"Arbitrary power has no place anywhere in a democracy and can not be conferred even by the largest majority," he said.

The bishop told the assembled clergymen and laymen that "as members of the Christian church we stand for both civil and religious liberty and we are seeing today that these two stand or fall together."

"It is not without reason that the dictatorship, whether Communist or Fascist, seeks to crush and destroy religion," Bishop Manning declared. "Religion is the true bulwark of human freedom."

Mrs. Toney experienced no funny feeling when told she was dead. "Cause I knew I was very much alive," she said.

Registrars explained the mistake thus: Several months ago a Mrs. Sara E. Toney, who lived on South Boulevard, died. On the registration list was a Mrs. Sara E. Toney—not two, just one. When the registration lists for the June 8 election began, unaware there were two citizens by the same name, the registrars eliminated the name from the lists. But all was remedied yesterday and Mrs. Toney will cast her vote June 8 as she has the last 13 years.

Voters were urged by the registrars to pay their 1936 poll tax immediately if they wish to vote in the June election. Under the ruling of the attorney general, citizens registered prior to December 8 and who have paid their 1936 poll tax by the election date will be qualified to cast ballots in the special general election.

illustrious name in Georgia," the first lady said. "I am for this project if only because it is on the Roosevelt highway. But I also am for it because I know it bears some of the heaviest traffic in Georgia and that it is dangerous to drive over in its present condition."

The delegation was aided by three members of the Fulton county commission, Chairman J. A. Ragsdale, Commissioner George F. Longino Jr., chairman of the county board's public works department, and Commissioner E. L. Almand. Former Commissioner Walter C. Hendrix, who launched the project while a member of the county commission, also appeared in support of its completion.

Mayors Make Pleas.

The following mayors of municipalities through which the highway passes made pleas in support of the project:

Mayor J. B. Parham, of East Point; Mayor G. W. Harris, of College Park; Mayor Guy Thomas, of Fairburn, and Mayor Thomas Arnold, of Palmetto. Mayor Paul Barrett, of Union City, was represented by Mr. Gullatt.

In addition to the city and county officials the delegation included a large representation from various interested garden clubs. The secretary of Mr. Gullatt's association, M. C. Bishop, introduced the speakers to Chairman Miller.

Following the board chairman's announcement Commissioner Longino informed Mr. Miller the county will aid in obtaining necessary rights of way.

"We will begin working on plans for the road at once," the board chairman said. "I hope it will be ready for the contractors within 60 days."

DICTATORSHIP PLAN LAID TO AMERICAN

U.S. Envoy to Berlin Accuses U. S. Billionaire of Backing Program.

BERLIN, May 11.—(UP)—United States Ambassador William E. Dodd said today that an American billionaire was ready to support a dictatorship in the United States.

He disclosed that he had written letters to Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Democrat, Ohio, and Senator Carter Glass, Democrat, Virginia, discussing the possibility of wealth and power combining to overthrow the present government.

"There are individuals of great wealth who wish a dictatorship and are ready to help a Huey Long," he said. "There are politicians who think that they may gain power like those exercised in Europe."

"One man, I have been told by personal friends, who owns nearly $1,000,000,000 is ready to support such a plan, and of course control it."

In Catalonia, on the eastern Mediterranean coast just below the French frontier, Anarchists and Communists entrenched themselves behind the mossy walls of Montjuich fortress outside Barcelona and threatened to bombard the city unless political "adjustments" were made by President Luis Companys's four-man "dictatorship."

The cannonading began immediately after Loyalist militiamen had dynamited a temporary wooden bridge which the Rebels have strung across the Manzanares river on the western outskirts in an attempt to establish communication with their comrades trapped in the shambles of University City.

Teething is TERRIBLE

"I got the best mama in all the world. She knows just what to do for me when I suffer some of those little fits which come along when babies like me start teething. Mama gives me Teething when I'm temporarily constipated and when gas or a sour stomach gives me colic pains, or when I eat the wrong kind of food and run out of my bowels. Teething makes a big hit with me because it tastes good, and mama likes it 'cause twelve powders cost but 30c. The drug store man keeps plenty of Teething for us babies." TEETHINA.

Gas, Gas All the Time, Can't Eat or Sleep

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested I should take Teething. That first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat, sleep fine and never feel better."

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. J. E. Shash, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika gives you a REAL cleansing. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves gas and constipation. At all leading drug stores."

David D. Long, secretary-treasurer, yesterday estimated at least 1,500 will attend sessions of the convention and associated conferences now being promoted as important features of the general program.

Court Surprised When Wife Says She Wants Mate

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(P)—Mrs. Nan Pierson Brooks Macy Brill, pretty New York society girl, came to court today to get an annulment of her marriage to William Hunsaker Brill and then give the court a surprise.

Suddenly she broke into tears, saying she had been coerced into applying for the annulment, did not want it, and wouldn't have it. Her attorney, Russell Garner, blinked. Superior Judge Still gaped. Daniel Hunsaker, attorney and uncle to her husband, jumped to his feet and began to sputter.

Mrs. Brill had taken the witness stand. She answered one question, regarding her name. Then she turned to the judge and cried:

"But your honor, I don't want this annulment. Bill Brill loves me and I love him, and there is no reason for this annulment."

Garner, recovering said: "I'm surprised, your honor, she came to my office and signed this complaint."

"It's all his family's fault," the witness sobbed. "Bill is in love with me and he was cold sober when he married me. I'm not going to have this marriage annulled by fraud."

The judge, interrupting, said "it appears that both of these young people are of legal age. I see no reason why an annulment should be granted if you don't want one." He continued the hearing for one week, and advised Mrs. Brill to get a new attorney.

SOLUTION EXPECTED IN TAYLOR SLAYING

Investigator Confident of Break in Case Within Few Days.

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(P)—A 15-year-old Hollywood mystery, the slaying of Director William Desmond Taylor, is "nearer solution than it ever has been," Chief Investigator Williams said tonight, adding:

"I'll be surprised if the break doesn't come within a few days." His statement came only a few hours after a "clear-me-or-try-me" plea by Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, mother of Mary Miles Minter, former screen star, who was Taylor's fiancée.

Mrs. Shelby and her two daughters, Miss Minter and Mrs. Margaret Fillmore, were questioned last week by the grand jury.

"For more than 10 years," a signed statement by Mrs. Shelby said, "there have been malicious innuendos and rumors against me. I did not kill William Desmond Taylor. I do not know who did kill him. I demand a complete exoneration in this case or an indictment for the murder."

Williams said today that he had not read her statement but commented:

"We'd all like to get this thing cleared up. And I'm confident we will. It's nearer to solution now than it ever has been."

Williams said he would question four persons within the next few days. He declined to name them.

Chief Executive Reviews Five Regiments of Texas Cadets.

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN EN ROUTE TO FORT WORTH, Texas, May 11.—(P)—President Roosevelt traveled across the rolling hills of central Texas today toward Fort Worth on the first leg of his return from a gulf fishing expedition.

He planned to spend tonight at the home of his son, Elliott, near Fort Worth and leave tomorrow evening for Washington. He will arrive there Friday morning, traveling by way of St. Louis and Indianapolis.

The President traveled from Galveston this morning to Houston and from there to College Station, where he reviewed five regiments of Texas A. & M. cadets and spoke for the third time during the day. A large crowd in the stadium heard him at College Station.

WAR PREPARATIONS SCORED BY F. D. R.

U. S. Military Program Designed for Peace, Says President.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, May 11.—(UP)—War preparations by old world nations were deplored by President Roosevelt today.

America's military program is designed for defense, he said, expressing hope that other countries would spend "less for war and more for the arts of peace."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke to a throng at the stadium of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College.

"America is not paying a high price for national defense," he said.

"Last year the army and navy took only 10 or 11 per cent of the total of government expenditures, while most nations of the old world were spending 30, 40 or 50 per cent on their armed forces."

"Ours was honestly meant for defense and not for offense. We hope other nations get our view—less for war and more for the arts of peace."

He also will be the annual meeting of the association.

E. Pillsbury, of New Orleans, president of the National Association of Credit Men, will be in Atlanta tomorrow to address a meeting of the Atlanta Association of Credit Men at the Henry Grady hotel at 6:30 p. m. His subject will be "The Credit Man and His Work."

THE CORONATION

Today King George VI of England is invested with that symbolic crown which makes him the titular and spiritual head of the far-flung British Empire. With his Queen he dons the royal purple to reign in the house of his fathers and to perpetuate the record of a constitutional monarchy that has given to the world its greatest empire, its most effective influence for stability and a leading exponent of government by the people.

It is probable that the spectacle staged in London today owes part of the unprecedented enthusiasm it has awakened through the empire, and the world, to that critical week of last December when fears for the welfare of the empire itself gripped the entire world.

The man who then reigned as King, though yet uncrowned, faced what he described as "the most serious decision of his life," a decision between love and duty. He did not choose duty.

Whatever the individual reaction to that romantic drama of five months ago, there is a universal feeling of relief that the man who now becomes King and Emperor exemplifies in his own life those qualities which hold society stable through all crises, whether material or emotional.

Romanticists may sneer at the qualities of domestic faith and quiet home life. Yet, were it not for this rock upon which the world is built, there would be no security for anyone, romanticists included.

Gratitude that George VI, his Queen and two charming little daughters are to personify the homely virtues of decent family life upon the pinnacle of a throne, is the background for the world-wide enthusiasm and interest in the ceremony that takes place in Westminster Abbey today.

MORE "PARTITIONING" OF CHINA

The warning reported to have been delivered in person by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to the British ambassador to China, Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen, that the rumored treaty between Great Britain and Japan economically partitioning China between these two nations, would be considered by the Nanking government as an unfriendly act, can be viewed as little more than an empty gesture.

Whatever Japan, with her vital political, as well as economic interests in China, and Great Britain, with her hundreds of millions of investments in the Far East, want to do, they will do regardless of whatever "protest" the Chinese government may make.

This is true because China is still helpless, despite its great bulk and latent man power, to resist any of the major nations of the world. Not only is China unprepared in armaments and modern military forces, but there is little question that, in the event of a war with an outside enemy, internal schisms would sap Chinese strength.

While the unification movement has moved along apace during the past ten years or more, there are still many Chinese war lords—as illustrated by the recent eruption of General Chang Sueh-ling—who would be willing to bring the threat of defeat for the nation if their personal fortunes might be bettered.

It will be many a year before China is strong enough to command sufficient respect from preying nations to force them to adopt a hands-off policy.

In the meantime, General Chiang and the other Chinese leaders may accomplish a "face-saving" purpose by repeated protests—but these protests, as in the present instance, will have little or no deterring effect.

If Great Britain and Japan are really negotiating a treaty under which they will restrict their business "spheres of influence" in China, it can be depended upon that they will go ahead with their plans.

STAMP THEM OUT

Charges were made in congress Monday that spies for the Spanish Rebels are actively at work in this country. It was stated that General Franco, leader of the Insurgents in Spain, is being aided by undercover agents in the United States.

Such charges demand immediate investigation. If they are untrue, the country should receive that reassuring information as quickly as possible. If the charges prove well-founded, those found guilty should be promptly deported, or jailed if they are American citizens.

America wants no part in the horrors now being perpetrated in Spain. She wants, emphatically, to keep out of this country any suggestion of taint from the internecine warfare raging in the land of the don.

The Spanish fighters have shocked all civilization by their barbarous warfare against noncombatants, women and children. They have brought shame and all honorable men by their wholesale use of the firing squad for the extermination of captured foes.

Now, it is charged, the Insurgents are seeking sympathizers and propagandists in this country. If so, there must be an immediate purge. A purge, not with the gun and the ax, as Fascism and Nazism remove their undesirable, but with prompt orders for deportation of all who carry the taint.

THE BETTER WAY

Burke county has demonstrated the best way in which lynching may be stamped out.

On April 26 a negro in Burke county assaulted a white woman. A short time after the crime he was captured by an enraged mob. The stage was set for another lynching. Two Burke county farmers, however, rescued the man from his captors. The negro was lodged in jail. The names of his rescuers should forever be inscribed in the honor rolls of their state and county.

On Monday, only two weeks after the crime, the negro was indicted and tried in Waynesboro. Proper guard was provided, the negro pleaded guilty, the jury found him guilty in five minutes, he was sentenced to die in the electric chair and the entire trial was completed in 40 minutes.

Thus Burke county has avoided a blot upon her own escutcheon and upon the good name of Georgia. She has seen that justice, prompt and inviolable, has been enacted upon the perpetrator of a foul crime and at the same time she has upheld in dignity and integrity the law and the courts of the state.

Gradually the lyncher is being eradicated from America. Each year the record improves. With such people as the good citizens of Burke county setting the example, there is hope that the day is not far distant when the rope of the lyncher will be as strange in modern life as is the stake of the Salem witchburner.

Legal technicality and the law's delays have been, in the past, the stock excuse of the mob. Prompt administration of legal justice, as in Burke county, will take away the last argument from those so benighted as to attempt to defend mass outrage.

HYDROPHOBIA MENACE

Twice within a month residents of the Clairmont Park section of Decatur have seen a mad dog ravaging through their streets, have seen their children bitten by the infected beast. In each instance the animal has come into Decatur from outside the city.

The experience of Atlanta's neighboring community city forcefully demonstrates the need for a state-wide dog law. It shows how, although a city or town may have an excellent law for the control of dogs and the protection of its people against hydrophobia, animals from beyond the city limits still menace the lives of children and adults.

Decatur has a city ordinance requiring that every dog owned in the city must be tagged and inoculated with antirabies serum at least once a year. That ordinance is rigidly enforced and the danger of hydrophobia attacking a Decatur dog is thus placed at a minimum.

If there were a similar law, state-wide in its application, protection would not only be made effective inside city boundaries, but would likewise protect every child, every adult and every dog in the state.

ANOTHER EXCUSE GONE

Courts have always held that ignorance of the law is no defense. The man or woman who lives under modern conditions is presumed to accept the rules laid down and to be familiar with those regulations.

The Atlanta Motor Club has prepared a booklet giving, in condensed form, the ordinances which govern the operation of motor vehicles in Atlanta. These booklets are available for all who ask at the motor club offices.

Laws and ordinances governing the running of an automobile are not difficult to understand. In this booklet they are told in language of utmost simplicity.

Ignorance of traffic laws, never a legal excuse for infringement, loses even its sympathetic appeal when it is so easy for everyone to be familiar with the rules.

A psychologist says an odd name can give a child a complex. It raises a possibility of thousands of cases of arrested development, all named Junior.

Because he got nothing out of college, a Tokyo graduate demands his tuition back. What, by the way, is the refund on an intellectual empty?

In spite of many distractions, Spain joined early in the modern craze for expositions, with her world's Donnybrook fair.

A savant at California Tech has found a new form of atomic matter. It will be compared with the ham in a drug store sandwich, for size.

If laid end to end, the victory claims of the opposing generals in Spain wouldn't overlap so.

An ex-convict in a magazine-article says he didn't get much out of prison classes. And yet, as we say on the campus, there are the contacts.

EXPERTS ON WORRYING

(From the Kansas City Times.)

Worry, worry, worry. Now we have to worry about whether worrying is good or bad. A group of thinkers meeting in New York failed to agree, apparently because they had failed to agree on the definition of the term.

In its definition of "worry" an accepted dictionary starts off by saying, "to choke or strangle." That at least is disheartening to worriers. But it is an obsolete idea. Well down the list of definitions the same dictionary suggests, "to feel or express great care and anxiety." Apparently the answer there would depend on whether you have a good reason for being anxious. Later another definition is suggested—"to advance or progress under difficulty and with dogged persistence." This would be advocated by all persons who believe in plodding, but not by the advocates of inspiration.

Oh, well, it is easy to see how the expert worriers might have found something to choke over or to feel anxious about and why they failed to progress under difficulty. But we positively refuse to worry about experts who can't agree on worrying, or on anything else.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

LOCAL LUCK—WASHINGTON, May 11.—A rumor is abroad that congress adjourned several weeks ago, when the President went fishing. This is what might be called officially an inaccuracy, but it is nevertheless just about true.

When President Roosevelt returns, he will learn the biggest thing that has happened in his absence was the capture by Representative Sam McReynolds, of Tennessee, of a 45-pound channel bass (don't ask an audit on the poundage). It is also true that a couple of the legislators nearly balanced the budget in the fifth race at Pinlico the other day, but failed sensationally by a nose.

Outside of these two developments, the stillness in congress has been sufficiently sweeping to cause a major White House problem. The unobserved fact is the leaders have cleaned up their legislative calendars of most bills that do not impose additional costs on the treasury, except supreme court packing and government reorganization. Now it is up to Mr. R. to decide whether he wants to reel in or let out line on the budget, and the leaders will not move until they hear from him directly and specifically on each bill.

Not the supreme court packing drive now lacks any semblance of the drive which Mr. Roosevelt personally gave it at first. Some good judges of opinion in the senate and house doubt that he could get two additional justices in a vote today. What vim he will put into it, if any, remains to be seen.

SUCCESS Senators have become so accustomed to sensational turns of events they have even stopped talking now about the sudden turn in the fortunes of the new senator, George Berry, of Tennessee. Within a week, he was raised in the public eye from co-ordinator for non-existent industrial co-operation and claimant for around a million and a half dollars from TVA to a seat in the senate from Tennessee.

The only answer now authoritatively available for the Berry appointment involves two prophecies.

One is that Governor Gordon Browning, of Tennessee, who made the appointment, will run for Berry's senate seat in 1938. Another is that Governor Browning will become one of the few governors in the country now enjoying federal patronage in his state. These two prophecies are as sure as anything ever is in Washington, but, if you want a third speculative guess to round out the picture, it is that the TVA claim dispute may be lost somewhere in the shuffle.

STUCK The sugar question is hot, and nearly everyone who has touched it here is more or less personally acquainted now with the chemical reaction which takes place when sugar warms up. This includes two cabinet members, Agriculture Secretary Wallace and State Secretary Hull, half a dozen lobbyist organizations working at cross purposes and the house agriculture committee, which is over its collar in difficulty.

The latest inside development is supposed to be that Mr. Wallace has informed Chairman Jones, of the house committee, that the administration is inclined to scrap all sugar legislation rather than take the bill drawn by the subcommittee.

If this were officially made public, it might create a roar in domestic cane, beet and refining quarters, whence the ideas for the bill came.

The only thing sure is that Jones is trying to work out something which will appease Messrs. Wallace and Hull as well as the domestic interests. It will be a tedious procedure the outcome of which is yet in doubt.

DISTINGUISHED DISCOMFORT

If Pennsylvania's Senator Guffey did not have such a good reputation as a host, he would probably have walked home from Louisville. Guffey invited congressional friends to the Derby, with Vice President Garner as the guest of honor. En route, nothing could have been more perfect. Board and lodging, to use a broadly descriptive phrase, were splendid. In Louisville, a special bus met the party and all reached Churchill Downs in the finest of fete.

After the Derby the group returned to the bus; that is, all except Guffey. His guests waited and waited. It was stuffy and uncomfortable in the bus. More than an hour passed. If the absentee had been anyone except the host—well, the procedure would have been more simple.

Finally, word got to the bus that Mr. Guffey was calling on a near-by telephone. Where had they been? Black, white, where had he been? Oh, that's different. He had forgotten where the bus would be and went directly to the station.

SILHOUETTES

A King is crowned,
Midst show and pomp,
The well-known
Welkin rings;
If we but will
Work hard, be kind,
We all may
Be true kings.

Life

Commences.

Though there is not quite the amount of economy and ritual, spectacle and publicity, to the average high school or college commencement there is to the coronation of a new king of Great Britain, Ireland and the dominions over the seas, Emperor of India, etc., etc., after all, Mr. and Mrs. George Windsor are the center figures in a certain sort of commencement exercises of their own, today.

Today they finish their preparation for life and assume that place in the world's society for which fate has destined them. Just like all the boys and girls who, in the spring of the year, diploma in hand, step forth from those institutions where they have undergone their preparation. Now they are ready to take their places in the social order, just as does George VI.

Of course, it is doubtful if there is one among these less publicized figures who will step into quite as high a job as that which King George must undertake. I don't believe there is any job in the world quite so hard as his.

Baccalaureate

Speakers.

One of the inescapable things at commencement time is the baccalaureate address. Some more or less distinguished citizen gets up before the graduating class, all the proud parents and uncles and aunts and sisters and brothers and cousins and so forth, all the other, all the distill of certain more or less bromide comment upon life in general and education in particular.

He raises the dreams and ethical ambitions of the youth before him to a subliminal pitch and thus adds a new handicap to their equipment for facing a rough and frequently unethical world.

But, at that, it is good these speakers are idealistic. For youth is, fortunately, idealistic itself. It would be a sorry thing for the world if youth was not filled with the noblest of aspirations. For the older ones, inevitably disillusioned in some degree, need the inspiration of bright, brave, new ideals every spring. Sort of a purifying and revitalizing influence, you know.

Commencement Really

Begins Education.

If I were addressing a graduating class—in fact, I have followed this rule on a few occasions in the past—I'd tell them that, truly, education begins at commencement time, as well as life. For, after all is said and done, all that can really be learned in school and in college, is how to learn. Teachers can introduce the youth in their charge to books. They can set their feet upon the road to knowledge, but the true student must walk that road alone and must walk it all through life. There is Famous Music.

Gregorio Allegri died February 18, 1632, having immortalized himself by writing the most famous piece of church music. He composed "Miserere" for the six-voice choir of the Vatican, and the Pope deemed it so great that he made it a crime punishable by excommunication to copy it!

Mozart heard it once, and so clearly did every note impress itself upon him, that he made a perfect copy of it from memory, and thus gave it to the world.

The first official air mail was flown over a prescribed route February 18, 1911, in about the last place you'd guess—India! Between Allahabad and Naini Junction.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Freedom NEW YORK, May 11.

Of Peace Although Mussolini is not an export commodity and Hitler says the same of his type of lunacy, there comes a point in their relations with the free countries when they try to impose their peculiar ideas on the neighbors. They both presume to suggest, even demand, that freedom of speech and freedom of the press be curtailed in countries which guarantee such freedom.

Inasmuch as impaired or limited freedom in these matters isn't at all what they require of us is the abolition of two very important rights. It makes no difference to them whether we and the British do this by violating our existing laws or by changing the laws in violation of our principles. They tell us what we have to do and leave the details to us, which is generous of them, to be sure.

The recent La Guardia affair was an instance of interference. It may be that only campaigning when he said Hitler would shame him out of a chamber of horrors or whatever it was that he did say, but unless you are going into a question of etiquette, Fiorello's position was sound.

However, our laws don't deal with etiquette. Mayor La Guardia comes to a matter of etiquette, our little chestnut-stabber would have been justified if he had turned on Cordell Hull and given him the rough side of his tongue for apologizing to Hitler in the name of the United States government. He could have said to Mr. Hull:

"Listen, now, what do you mean deprecating the conduct of the lawfully elected mayor of New York? Mind your own business."

Mr. Hull

In Right

And he would have been in the right, because, as Mr. Hull, himself, pointed out to Adolf the national government has neither authority nor responsibility in the utterance of officials of the subdivisions. The national government is so fastidious about their independence that it doesn't even take their official salaries.

Mussolini hasn't given us any trouble, but he has been needing the British for a couple of years. His press, like Hitler's, is strictly official. No Italian or German newspaper dares print anything contrary to instructions or omit anything sent down from the Press-and-Propaganda Bureau with the "must" stamp on it.

So, Mussolini's papers print dirty pieces about the British and even incite riots around the British embassy in Rome as they have done, those pieces are really state documents and the official sentiments of Popeye himself. On the other hand, when a British paper plucks a line from off Popeye's chest and blows it in his face with a reference to Adowa or Caporetto, or the dashing retreats of the black shirts in Spain, that is an independent utterance.

For reason Mussolini burns up at these references is that he has spent 14 years trying to make the world and Italy think of the Italians as conquerors. But the British government isn't responsible. The cabinet members probably do get some private enjoyment out of the reminders of occasions when the invincible legions ran like hares, but they know every nation has its own raw spots. The only difference is that Mussolini can't take it. He can dish it, but he can't take it at all.

La Guardia After La Guardia tossed off his crack about Adolf, the Nazi papers turned on the heat and the most flattering thing they said about the American people was that we were a race who kept our hats on indoors, but our feet on the table and spat chewing gum at the walls.

That was the official utterance of the Nazi government and there is no debate whatever on that point. Can you imagine what would have happened to any editor who had printed that remark without official approval?

Yet, they are demanding that country revoke freedom of speech to prevent unfriendly utterances by minor officials in the subdivisions of the nation. And then they went further and threatened to interfere in our domestic affairs, although in their country Americans are forbidden by law to organize internal interference and don't care enough about Germany to do it anyway.

In both cases, there is only one thing to do. The free countries must look them dead in the eye, stamp on their corns and tell them to go to hell. Otherwise, they will run us ragged, apologizing, explaining, curtailing our rights until we shall be no better off than they.

Singer at Age of 6.

Adelina Patti was born in Italy February 19, 1848. Five years before she became the Shirley Temple of her day. She toured as a singer at the age of six, and continued her career until her fifties.

Her heyday was the decade between 1880 and 1890, when she wouldn't sing a note until her $5,000 concert fee was paid over, and was given to such temperamental outbursts as refusing to appear in a town where posters advertised another singer in letters one-half-inch higher than those of her own name.

Barnum Overcame the Competition of Bailey by Making Bailey a Partner

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Certain things are right when done by a man and wrong when done by a woman. Knowing this much, a stranger would also know that the rules were made by men.

Every man has a natural right to speak his mind to another. Yet it is a crime for a private to abuse an officer, though not an offense for an officer to abuse a private, which means that the rules were made by officers.

Always and everywhere the rules are made by the strong to control the weak. It is inevitable that it should be so, for only the strong can enforce rules. And self-interest prompts all men to favor the rule that favors them.

The first laws were made by the strong to protect their property and advantages. And moral and ethical rules had the same origin and the same purpose.

The nations that now control most of the earth acquired their title by force. In short, they stole the property. But now they have made rules to insure "territorial integrity," and thus they say in effect: "We have taken what we need; now it is unlawful and immoral for anybody else to take it from us."

Law and morals freeze the status quo. These arrangements must be supported by force, for it pleases only those it benefits. Men and parties and nations are divided into two groups, the haves and the have-nots, or the ins and outs, and the rules are made by the ins to keep themselves in.

People who resent this arrangement think they are sincerely opposed to injustice, but history shows that they are merely opposed to being out.

The Reds of Russia opposed tyranny and the abuse of power and class distinction, but war and revolution made them the upper dogs and now they believe in killing and jailing all opponents and ruling by torture and terror.

The rich, cultured and pious people of Spain long believed it a sacred duty to obey the constituted authority for they were it. But when the radicals gained control, in a lawful election, the nice people decided it was their sacred duty to overthrow the government.

Whoever the ins may be, and whatever noble cause they represent, make rules to favor themselves and regard all opposition as wickedness. And the outs have no respect for rules that pinch them.

We might as well tell the truth and quit fooling ourselves with catch phrases.

The only hope of permanent peace is an arrangement so fair that all of us will favor the rules made by the ins because the ins are on our side.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Stalin's Warning.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—The leader of Russia's interior and exterior policy has just made a declaration to the effect that in his estimation things are going far from perfect in the Soviet state. He summed up an amazing series of acts of sabotage, wrecking, terror and espionage, which have recently come to light, not omitting the vast plot of the Trotskyists to give away Russian territory to Japan and to Germany.

From his own words, spoke before the plenary council of the Communist party, it is clear that not tens or scores but hundreds and even thousands of persons were but recently tried for treasonable action in one form or another in the Soviet Union. The world heard of one or two big trials, but literally thousands of trials were held and a great number were executed or thrown into jail or into concentration camps.

Some men in the immediate vicinity of the dictator himself were caught in the dragnet of the secret police. And Stalin asked the question at that council how it was that the true and tried Bolsheviks did not notice what was happening under their very noses.

It is not amiss today to remember our history—to recall many another day of coronation in the annals of the nations, great and small. Names will flash before our memory's eye of men and women who have come to receive the glittering crowns of earth, some to wear them in honor, some to bring reproach upon the people. "When the righteous rule, the people rejoice."

Sober reflection upon the tides of time will bring every thoughtful and understanding heart to join with Kipling in saying: "The tumult and the shouting dies—The captains and the kings depart—Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice, An humble and a contrite heart. Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget, lest we forget!"

I find that the coronation in London today leads my own mind on to contemplate that glad and glorious day when the King of kings and Lord of lords shall receive the diadem of eternal praise from countless hearts from every kindred, every tribe, on this terrestrial ball. What a day of rejoicing that will be! How glad should be every trusting heart in the thought that even we may join in that blessed day of coronation. From every nation, from every race, from every language, from every condition and circumstance of life, shall come the redeemed of the Lord to join in that Hallelujah chorus—

DRINKING HAS INCREASED

Editor Constitution. Before we listen to any more promises made by the repealists of the prohibition law it will be well worth while to look at their failure to keep the laws already made by them.

The liquor interests have not kept their promises made prior to repeal in other states. It will be the same if repeal is voted in Georgia. Bootlegging is growing in spite of larger appropriations for liquor-law enforcement than were made during the prohibition era. Drinking, since repeal, has increased 138 per cent among insurance company applicants, under 30 years of age. Enrollment in Keely-cure institutions is reported to have increased 70 per cent during the same period, 14 per cent of the patrons being women.

The record shows that whereas 177,000 licensed saloons went out at the ratification of the eighteenth amendment, we have today approximately 438,000 licensed dispensaries of alcoholic drinks. These range from bar-rooms and ice cream parlors to dugouts and Pullman diners. Of the two evils the old-time saloon was the lesser. The new evil includes our women, women bartenders, women hostesses, girl entertainers, well-meaning, respectable women and girls as patrons. The last state is worse than the others for then no woman pretending even to be decent would enter a saloon.

If our people would remember that legalizing alcohol does not change its effect on the human nor its habit-forming qualities and that if our young people acquire the liquor drinking habit today, you may be sure they will be the drunkards of tomorrow.

As surely as the dry law is repealed in Georgia conditions will be made worse here. Liquor cannot be controlled or regulated no matter how many laws are passed, the only hope, the only remedy, is to outlaw it in every shape and form from the nation.

It has been proved by leading physicians that alcohol is ruinous to kidneys, liver, heart and all the smaller blood vessels and gives rise to that most common fatality, high blood pressure.

Let us think seriously before flooding Georgia with this greatest tool of the devil.

AN EDITORIAL AND A SERMON

Editor Constitution: No finer editorial in your "That Which Is Yet To Be Done" has ever appeared on the editorial page of The Constitution.

Of course, the woman who wore the "jeweled tiaras" at the Royal Opera House in London may not in any personal sense have been to blame for the death of the "50,000 Chinese from drought famine." But the system is to blame. The bejeweled woman and the begrimed beggar on the street are of the same creation. The Almighty God that "breathed the breath of life" into the one breathes it into the other. Each is a product of circumstance in so far as their economic status is concerned. The system that makes such inequalities possible is proof positive that this humanity of ours still has in it much of "that which is yet to be done."

Surely there is something radically, cruelly wrong with the economics that produces or permits the inequalities to exist as do exist in this good old world today.

And you put the remedy where it belongs. If there is any remedy for the plight this old world is in—and I believe there is—it lies in the teachings of the Galilean carpenter. And he was not primarily concerned with the idea of peoples having a happy life hereafter; he wanted them to have it here and now. He never intended that some should stuff while others starve. "I am come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly," means abundant life now, beginning at this very minute and extending through all eternity.

More editorials along these lines, linking up the need with the only cure for it, will do more good than most of the other world preaching that is being given out from the pulpits of today.

TALLULAH BACKED FOR SCARLETT ROLE

Alabama Officeholders Sign Petition Urging Her for 'Gone With the Wind.'

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 11. (P)—Alabama admirers of Tallulah Bankhead, the actress, have started petitions intended to land her the role of Scarlett O'Hara in the film version of Margaret Mitchell's novel, "Gone With the Wind."

Solicitor Temple Seibels, of Montgomery circuit court, signed 45 county officers and employees to a petition today, asking that producers (Selznick International) give Miss Bankhead, native Alabamian and daughter of Speaker W. B. Bankhead, the part of Scarlett.

The first petition made its appearance in offices of the Works Progress Administration last week, and Seibels said he understood similar documents would be passed among other federal agencies and the state capital here.

J. W. Heustess, secretary, said he'd ask the Alabama Association of County Commissioners to pass a resolution "favoring Miss Bankhead" at their convention here next week.

AX SLAYER OF WIFE HANGS SELF IN CELL

RAIFORD, Fla., May 11.—(P)—State prison officials reported today that Henry Shaffer, serving 20 years for the ax slaying of his wife, hanged himself in his cell Sunday night.

Superintendent Chapman said Shaffer entered the prison December 15, 1936. He declared Shaffer demanded the death penalty at his trial at Miami.

Marriage of Children Is Thwarted by Hunger

BOSTON, May 11.—(P)—The marriage plans of Thomas J. Kearns, of Fairhaven, and Gladys Mullin, of New Bedford, both 14 years old, were postponed temporarily at least—today. The couple stopped at a lunch wagon here last night and asked for a meal. The attendant agreed to "stake" them but at the same time informed the Dudley Street police station.

A kindly police sergeant questioned the couple and learned they were hitch-hiking to New Hampshire to get married. "I don't like to bust up this romance, kids," the sergeant said, "but if you're on your way to get married the law will have to take a hand."

FBI INSTRUCTION WAITS 40 POLICE

Graduates in Turn Will Teach Other Members of Atlanta's Finest.

Forty Atlanta policemen this morning will meet for their first class in a course of training to be directed by three instructors assigned for the purpose by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said to be en route here from Washington last night.

Classes will be held each Monday, Wednesday and Friday throughout the month's course, starting at 8:30 o'clock in the morning. Each class will consume about three hours.

The officers will be taught self-defense in the handling of criminals, the use of firearms and the science of ballistics, traffic safety methods and other subjects.

When the class of 40 completes its training, those officers will be used as instructors to teach other men of the department.

Assisting the G-men "professors" in instructing the officers will be Captain Phil Dorr, of the Pennsylvania highway patrol; Fire Chief O. J. Parker, Atlanta; Solicitor General John A. Boykin, Atlanta; and Burton Marsh, traffic safety expert of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Classes will be held in the old kitchen at police headquarters, this room having been renovated and remodeled for the purpose.

HEALTH TALKS

AMERICAN NERVOUSNESS CALLS FOR AN ANTIDOTE

The American way of living involves much dissembling of natural feelings and impulses and a growing tendency to substitute excitement for recreation, thrill for diversion, boredom and ennui for relaxation, vice for pleasure, business for work, sport for play and restless yearning for contentment.

Instead of playing games Americans prefer to watch others play. This is all right for honest working folk, that is, for people who work with their muscles or get exercise regularly in one way or another. It is all wrong for sedentary folk, that is, for people who live by their wits or as parasites.

It is wrong because the spectator or fan cannot possibly use in frantic screaming, stamping of feet, applause, booing and other hysterical manifestations the large amount of energy—the only kind of energy physiology recognizes—released by the excitement of the game. What happens is that the vital machinery is racked. What happens when you habitually race your automobile engine? What happens when the belt slips off from a flywheel?

Examination of 25 members of a university football team after the final and most "important" game of the season—important, of course, to those who exploit the sport—showed that 12 had sugar in the urine, and five of these had not played in the game but had been all keyed up waiting on the sidelines for the tin god coach to send them in there.

Examination of nine medical students who, like the 25 football players, were all normally sugar-free, following a hard examination showed that four had sugar in the urine. Only one student in the same group, examined after an easy examination, had sugar in the urine.

If tests could be made of all spectators before and after a game, probably a larger proportion of them would show the signs of damage to the vital machinery. It is in the grandstand or the bleachers, not on the playing field, that the gravest casualties of baseball, boxing, football and other popular sports occur.

At the same time the spilling of blood sugar occurs in emotional stress there is generally a great speeding up of the heart action which becomes both faster and more forcible and a sharp rise in blood pressure. These and other well recognized manifestations are due to the increased secretion of adrenin by the adrenal glands stimulated by emotion. Adrenin is fairly called an "antidote for muscular fatigue"—a vital essential where one's natural reaction is to fight or run away; but bad medicine where one substitutes imaginary reaction.

The automatic or autonomic outpouring of adrenin by the adrenal glands under emotional influence is the natural, physiological way to prepare for fight or flight. If fight or flight is not feasible in the circumstances and no adequate use is made of the power or energy thus liberated, the human machine is bound to be damaged more or less, and whatever part of it is damaged, it is human nature, at least Yankee human nature, to call the result "nervous" trouble, though it would be more accurate and truthfully to call it brain weakness.

TEST CASE LOOMS ON POWER OF SEC

Financier Refuses To Reveal Disposition of $250,000 Fee.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(P)—An international financier's refusal to disclose the final disposition of $250,000 he received for negotiating the sale of a subway system in Buenos Aires may result in a test of the Securities Commission's power to compel testimony under the public utility holding company act.

David Schenker, counsel for the commission, recommended today that it ask the Justice Department to file a complaint under the act against Philip Deronde, the financier, who also is the Paraguayan consul in New York.

At a commission hearing Friday into affairs of the General Investment Corporation, Deronde refused to reveal the final disposition of his $250,000 fee from the investment trust for negotiating the sale of the subway in the Argentine capital. The subway, into which General Investment had put $17,500,000, was sold to a semi-official agency of the Argentine government for $7,500,000, testimony indicated.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"This royal throne of kings, this sceptred isle . . . This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England."

England crowns a King today—and blood, history, literature, law, temperament, song, will join to make America salute. Some may say that England's King is no King at all, that he is only the mouthpiece of his ministers, that his word has no weight, his will no expression. But that is why he is King. The King who rules has no place in modern government, even though he may come to have it as Fascists develop their philosophy. But the king who stands for his country in the hearts of his countrymen, the English King, has a real and definite place. He is something above parties and partisanship, above the clashes of capital and labor, above the friction between rich and poor, above all the battles in which the philosophers and sociologists and economists and statesmen engage. He is the human embodiment of a country which includes all of these things and is more precious than any of them. He is the common good, the flag, the national emblem. He is England.

Some may say, too, that America has no proper commerce with the day that celebrates a realm to which our own does not and would not belong. But in deeper concept, there is no loving or understanding America without loving and understanding England. We may quarrel with English politics, criticize English ways, clash with English economics, resent English assurance, but we can never escape our English origins and blood. We are what has gone before us, and most of what has gone before us is in England.

For the sign of patriotism and common good he makes, for the eternally great and kindred land over which he presides, for the hopes of the world that rest in such wide measure with the empire to which he belongs—America's voice will cry today with England's—"God Save the King!"

There are only 10 states in the Union with poll taxes, and nine of them are southern. It is safe to say that even though the idea of a tax which has been to exclude from voting certain people considered undesirable, the present result is to exclude as many desirable as undesirable. There can be no true democracy in the south so long as the poll tax remains. If a qualification for voting necessary it should be educational, not economic.

Because of the poll tax a great number of people in southern states fail to vote, including many who are able to pay the tax but do not think it worth while or have let themselves get so far behind that they are due more than they will even consider paying. And failure of southerners to vote can cost them something very valuable now. It can cost them representation in the national convention of the Democratic party, which is their only outlet to political expression. Under the proposed new plan of apportioning convention delegates, representation will be given on a basis not of census population alone but of Democratic voting strength also. Unless the Democratic voting strength of the south is allowed to express itself at the polls, this region will lose political weight. Poll taxes prevent such an expression.

Interesting and valuable are the evidences of a migration northward of southern talent as offered by famed Professor Wilson Gee, of the University of Virginia, we should like to have him discuss for us the possibility of error in basing his evidence on "Who's Who in America." In the first place, getting in "Who's Who" is more a fashion and practice in some regions than in others. In the second place, there are easily as many talented men out of "Who's Who" as in it.

Sleeping Drugs Cause Insanity, Savant Reveals

PITTSBURGH, May 11.—(P)—Sleeping powder insanity, a new mental hobgoblin among the "psychoses" that are relentlessly increasing in the United States, was reported to the American Psychiatric Association here today.

It is one of the strange reactions of human beings to misuse of the flood of new chemicals coming from the scientific, synthetic laboratories. There is no doubt, said Frank J. Curran, M. D., Bellevue hospital, New York, of a definite increase in mental illness from overindulgence in one of these more recent drugs, known as the barbiturates.

Sixty different barbiturates are manufactured. But, said Dr. Curran, when taken unrestrictedly by laymen, they may induce insanity. The results include stupor, convulsions, halting speech, trembling tongue and lips, shaking fingers and unsteady gait.

Second to the barbiturates in causing the new type of insanity stands an older drug, bromide. The victims of misuse of this see flowers, hear voices, imagine they feel electric shocks.

The causes of these insanities, Dr. Curran explained, are chemical injuries to the nerves. The remedy, he said, is laws to restrict sale. New York and New Jersey have such laws, but there are few restrictions elsewhere.

COUNTIES GET SUPPLY OF FORMS FOR AGE PENSIONS

Application Blanks Will Be Prepared Against Outcome of June 8 Election.

Application forms for old-age pensions will be distributed to officials of all counties next week, Welfare Director Lamar Murdaugh announced yesterday. The forms now are being printed, he said, and will be sent to county welfare workers, county commissioners and other authorities as soon as possible.

"We will ask the county officials to get the applications prepared and ready for handling immediately after the June 8 election," Murdaugh said.

Hinged to Amendments. The social security program administration will depend to a large extent on the outcome of two amendments being submitted at the election to allow counties and the state to levy taxes to support it.

In one of three contests of legality of the election, Judge Berry T. Moseley, of the northern circuit superior courts, yesterday ruled the act calling the election constitutional and dissolved a temporary injunction restraining county officials from holding it.

State appropriations for carrying out old-age pensions and other social security forms do not become available until July 1.

Applications To Start. Murdaugh said under the plans now being made, applications will be taken beginning with the distribution of the forms to the counties, and will be acted on after the June 8 election, and payments will start in July.

He announced also an application to the Federal Social Security Board for repayment to the state and its various counties of 50 per cent of the money spent during April, May and June for Confederate pensions and for amounts expended on relief for persons over 60 years of age.

The state will have spent approximately $156,000 for Confederate pensions during the period, and counties approximately $330,000 for relief of persons over 60 years of age.

Atlanta Woman Displays 'Mystery' Invitation to 1902 Coronation

Mrs. Robble Shackelford Adams, of Atlanta, hasn't yet found out why her mother received an invitation to the coronation of Edward VII in 1902. She is shown above displaying the mysterious document, and at left is a close-up of it.

Why Bid Came to Mrs. Shackelford In 1902 Still Mystifying Family

Daughter of Former Gate City Resident Writes of Royal Command to Ceremonial for Edward VII Three Decades Gone and Guesses Reasons.

England crowns George VI today. And the occasion finds the mystery of why Mrs. Robert H. Shackelford, former Atlanta resident, received an invitation to the coronation of King Edward VII in the spring of 1902 still unsolved.

The story of the 35-year-old enigma, written exclusively for The Constitution by Mrs. Shackelford's daughter, Mrs. L. B. Adams, of 1371 Fairbanks street, S. W., follows:

By ROBBIE SHACKELFORD ADAMS.

Now that today is coronation day, it will be interesting to discover just how many of the 7,700 coronation invitations issued this year will be in existence a year from now. Perhaps it's safe to say that the majority of these invitations were presented at the door of Westminster Abbey; for, although a cat may look at a King, even a cat can't enter that church today without an invitation.

Since a seat in Westminster Abbey during a coronation cannot be had for love or money but by invitation only, the lucky recipient of one of the invitations would, if unable to go, most likely pass on the invitation to a kinsman who could. Still, there may be a person somewhere who didn't do anything with his invitation except to wonder why he received it and then put it away in a box in the attic to keep as a souvenir for future grandchildren.

That's what Mrs. Robert H. Shackelford, of Jacksonville, Fla., did when she received an invitation to the coronation of King Edward VII 35 years ago. She and her husband (who is now dead) were living in Madison, Fla., when the invitation came in the spring of 1902. Mrs. Shackelford opened the heavy square envelope, which was addressed to both of them in an unfamiliar hand, thinking it was a wedding invitation. Imagine her astonishment when she pulled out a double-folded sheet of heavy white paper and read:

The Royal Family of Great Britain and Ireland, Imperial India and the British Colonial Possessions Beyond the Seas Greeteth thee and commandeth thy presence at the Abbey of Westminster in the Ancient City of London on the Twenty-eighth Day of June Anno Domini nineteen hundred and two, Anno Regni one thousand and two on the occasion of the solemn ceremony

THE CORONATION of the son and heir of the reigning house and prince of the blood royal Albert Edward George Plantagenet William St. Leger Henry Gueph James Bittinger Gower Wettin Fitzmaurice

Knight of the Golden Fleece, Knight of the Garter, Knight of the Bath and possessor of numerous and various other most noble and exalted titles

EDWARD THE SEVENTH By the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Defender of the Faith and Emperor of India. Haec pro amicitia nostra.

The invitation was printed in black old-English type on heavy white paper which measured 6 1/4 by 10 inches. The only decoration was the royal coat of arms, about two inches high, in red. Inclosed with the invitation were two printed slips of paper, which gave the minutest detail as to costume.

There were various instructions as to dress; it seemed that different people were supposed to dress according to their trade or walk in life. There was some mention of wearing the color purple, wearing feathers in one's hair, and wearing trains so many inches long.

Mrs. Shackelford cannot explain why she and her husband were honored with this invitation. But her daughter, Mrs. Leon B. Adams, of Atlanta, who now has possession of the invitation, believes there was some connection between that and another invitation

DUMMY FIRM LAID TO VAN SWERINGENS

Violation of I. C. C. Regulations Admitted by Rail Empire Official.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(P)—Senator Wheeler, Montana Democrat, charged today that the late Van Sweringen brothers had used a chain of "dummy corporations" to link the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad into their vast transportation empire in defiance of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The transaction was termed "a plain, ordinary evasion of the law" by Wheeler, chairman of the senate railway finance committee.

Herbert Fitzpatrick, chief lieutenant of the Van Sweringens and still a dominant figure in their 23,000-mile rail network, told the committee, after five hours of cross-examination, that "it is quite true we were doing indirectly what we could not do directly."

The method by which the brothers gained control of the C. & E. I. was explained by Francis Paine, head of the Boston brokerage house which for years handled the Van Sweringen's business.

The Chesapeake & Ohio paid him $500,000 on January 7, 1930, he testified for an "option" on a block of stock controlling the Illinois carrier.

Although he did not then own this stock, he said, he purchased it that same day for $8,000,000 from the Thomas Fortune Ryan estate, using the Guaranty Company and the Guaranty Trust Company, both of New York, as intermediaries.

While title to the stock technically remained with his firm, Paine explained, it actually was controlled by the Van Sweringens.

F. D. R. MAY DECIDE ON MONEY PARLEY

Administration Officials Silent Pending Return of President.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(P)—Administration officials, in the absence of a public expression by President Roosevelt, were non-committal toward a proposal by Representative Dies, Democrat, Texas, for an international monetary conference.

Some members of congress reported they had heard that the President might discuss the possibility of such a conference on his return to the capital Friday from a fishing trip in the Gulf of Mexico.

Leaders made no flat prediction that he would reveal his views, however, and Treasury officials commented that the existing monetary agreement between the United States, Great Britain and France is working satisfactorily. That agreement, pledging the three nations to co-operate in efforts to stabilize the relation of their currencies to each other, also is being adhered to by Belgium, The Netherlands and Switzerland.

In discussions of Dies' proposal for an international conference, it was recalled the administration has shown concern for months over the large volume of gold entering the United States.

Dies, co-author of the administration's 1934 silver purchase act, asked congress to direct President Roosevelt to call the proposed conference.

HURT BY 1ST SHOT, VET ENDS HIS LIFE WITH 2D. TALLADEGA, Ala., May 11.—(P)—Walter C. Freeman, 38, World War veteran, was dead today of two bullet wounds, fired into his chest by a single-shot rifle.

Coroner Hawkins said Freeman, in ill health since he was gassed in France, reloaded and fired the rifle after the first bullet did not prove immediately fatal.

The second bullet entered Freeman's heart.

HYDRANT, CURB, 2 CARS INVOLVED IN ACCIDENT. Billy Witherington, 95 Merritts avenue, was dismissed from Grady hospital yesterday after emergency treatment of injuries suffered when his automobile collided with another.

Witherington's car was said to have run up on a curb and knocked down a fireplug after struck by the other machine. Richard Buchanan, 1358 Jonesboro road, drove the other machine, police said.

TOWNSEND IS HOPEFUL. BOISE, Idaho, May 11.—(P)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, here for a speech, predicted today "if we cannot get our plan through the present congress we will get it through the next one."

THREE CHILDREN DIE WHEN STOVE EXPLODES. OAKLAND, Cal., May 11.—(P)—Three small sons of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Doby were burned to death last night by the explosion of a kerosene stove in their home while both parents were absent.

NO CHANCE IS SEEN FOR GUN LISTING LAW. WASHINGTON, May 11.—(P)—Representative Claude A. Fuller, Eureka Springs, Ark., said today the attorney general's firearm registration proposal did not have "a chance to be even favorably reported" by the ways and means committee, of which he is a member.

He said criminals would not register, but law-abiding citizens would, and "unintentionally be in trouble much of the time."

AUTHOR ATTACKS ANTI-LYNCH BILL

'Clansman' Novelists Call Plan Veiled Assault Upon the South.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., May 11.—(P)—Thomas Dixon, author and lecturer recently appointed clerk of federal court for the eastern district of North Carolina, denounced the anti-lynching bill pending in congress at a banquet here tonight preceding a debate on President Roosevelt's court plan by Representative Maury Maverick, Democrat, Texas, and Representative Ralph O. Brewster, Republican, Maine.

"Lynching has nothing to do with that bill," said Dixon, author of "The Clansman," novel on which the motion picture, "The Birth of a Nation," was based.

"The bill is simply a blind for a veiled attack that is being made upon the south. It is another attempt to put the south back under a reconstruction regime."

HIGH ARMY OFFICIAL DEMOTED IN RUSSIA

Vice Commissar of War Is Shifted to Minor Volga Post.

MOSCOW, May 11.—(P)—The most important shakeup in the Red army command since Leon Trotsky was ousted from the war commissariat in 1923 today demoted Marshal Michail Kikolavich Tukhachevsky from his post as second in command of Soviet military forces.

A curt communique announced the first vice commissar of war had been shifted to command of the Volga military garrison, a position of minor importance.

Officials declined to discuss the order, but the marshal's position had been considered dubious since January when the newspaper writer, Karl Radek, on trial with 16 others as Trotskyist plotters, brought his name into the proceedings.

DRIVER IS CONVICTED IN CRASH DEATH OF 7

MARIANNA, Fla., May 11.—(UP)—L. B. Thomas, negro truck driver, today was convicted on charges of criminal negligence following a bus-truck crash early Sunday in which seven youths were killed.

The seven boys were returning to Greensboro from a Future Farmers of America meeting here when Thomas crashed into their bus near Victory bridge.

The negro fled after sideswiping the bus, but later was apprehended.

HELD IN HI-JACKING.

CAMILLA, Ga., May 11.—(P)—E. C. Newell and J. H. Johnson were in county jail here today on a charge of assault with intent to murder, as a result of an alleged hijacking near here in February, it was stated by W. H. Boggs, sheriff of Mitchell county who brought the men here from Jacksonville, Fla., where they were arrested.

PAGE URGES AN END TO RELIEF SPENDING

Congressman Says Nation Now Should Set Its House in Order.

CORDELE, Ga., May 11.—(P)—Congressman Stephen Pace, of the third Georgia district, expressed "doubt of the need of any further federal expenditures at all by the federal government in view of its financial condition."

In a letter to the Cordele Lions Club, the Democratic representative said:

"I believe that the emergency is over, and that we could set our house in order, cut expenses, abolish unnecessary agencies, hold expenditures well within our income and perfect plans for the orderly reduction of the national debt."

Discussing President Roosevelt's requested $150,000,000 for continuation of relief, the letter said: "I seriously doubt the necessity of a relief appropriation in this amount; in fact, I have some doubt of the need of any further relief expenditures at all by the federal government in view of its financial condition."

"I have been unable to get the authorities to approve projects in several communities in my district, for the reason, as they state, that there is no one on the relief rolls in such communities."

"Also, I have received several complaints from my district on account of shortage of labor, caused by people standing around waiting for relief."

BREAK O'DAY!

It was long distance. Mr. Earl Mann was talking from Little Rock. His voice came faintly over the wires.

EMIL LEONARD.

"We are still in the league," he said. "Your voice seems jumpy. Have you been eating those Arkansas frog legs?" "I get nervous waiting for these night games." "How bad is Dutch Leonard's shoulder?" "Well, it's been so sore he couldn't really throw. The other day when they knocked him out he couldn't do much more than lob the ball up there." "When will he be ready?" "I think he will be ready within a week. Maybe sooner." "Don't get too nervous." "I'm not. We've got a ball club that will get going. First Beckman was hurt. And then Hooks. And then Leonard. It's a long way to September and we'll be in there before then." "The boys are down, are they?" "No, they all feel great. They are hustling and they believe they will get back up there soon." "The hitting is good." "Good? Say, this club is hitting over .300 as a club. And that's something. As soon as the pitching gets in shape that will count for a lot. We are getting enough runs." "Looks as if you made a ten-strike getting that Hugh Luby lad." "What is he hitting?" "Well, with the season almost a month old, all that boy can do is boost his batting mark a bit over .360." "Well, he's going great, all right." "Hang in there and don't shoot until you see the whites of their eyes." "Don't worry about us. We are still in the league." And Mr. Mann went back to waiting on another night game at Little Rock.

RETIRE AT 70? ASK CONNIE.

Connie Mack is one who is extremely out of patience with the idea that at 70 a man is all washed up and ready for the old soldiers' home.

At 74 he has a young ball club which is playing great baseball for him—one which is leading the American league in one of the most amazing baseball spurts of several seasons.

He has, according to his interview of yesterday, a bunch of "chattering, hustling, fighting kids."

"My goodness," said Connie Mack, "they certainly have surprised me and put me back in the game."

At 74 Connie Mack probably is the best manager in baseball. He is not thinking about retiring. He is planning to win the pennant next year—or the year after.

The fact that three of his winning pitchers are recent graduates of the Atlanta ball club adds to local interest. The chief justices may give up and retire. But not Connie Mack.

"My goodness, no," Connie is going to win the pennant.

THE SAD CASE OF MR. HOGAN.

Baseball has known no sadder story than that of Mr. Shanty Hogan, the catcher.

He lately was sold down the river by Clark Griffith to the Indianapolis ball club.

When the Washington ball club was through Atlanta in the spring, Mr. Shanty Hogan was along. He did not look happy. He was thinner. Even though he was as large as a circus elephant, figuratively speaking, he was still much thinner than he had been.

"What is your menu, Shanty?" someone asked him. "A cup of black coffee for breakfast," he said, "and for lunch a walk through the dining room. For dinner a cup of weak tea, two spoons of vegetables and a piece of lean beef the size of a lady's hand. A very small lady."

He was losing weight. Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington ball club, had told him in 1936 that if he did not lose a lot of weight, he could not stay with the Washington ball club.

Hogan began to lose the weight. Once someone wrote him if he had any general rule for losing weight. He wrote:

"Don't eat anything, don't drink anything, don't have any fun and don't get any sleep."

This sounded like a cry of anguish, and it was. Any one who has been on a diet will know what Shanty Hogan was suffering. When his pals had beer and Swiss on rye late at night, he had weak tea. When, after a hard afternoon of practice, his mates had steak and potatoes and bread and butter, he had a small bit of beef the size of a lady's hand—and a small lady, at that—and two small bits of vegetables.

It was real torture. There wasn't any dodging that plain fact. He was hungry all the time. But he lost weight.

And then, when he had done it, Clark Griffith sold him down the river.

Mr. Clark Griffith is one of those lean people who look upon eating as a bad habit. Or a sort of necessary evil.

Otherwise he could not have done what he did. That ought to be plain.

ANOTHER GREEK HOMER.

Another "Homer" has come along to make Cincinnati fans out of the baseball fans among the local Greek colony.

Every day, now, one finds Mr. George Hanjaras going into the major league box scores.

Alexander Kampouris, the Cincinnati second baseman, hit six home runs in three games. Which happens to be one more than he hit all season.

The Greek poet, Homer, smote his blooming lyre. But "Theesa Kampouris"—he smites the blooming baseball. And more people know about that than ever heard about Homer.

Georgia Frosh Lose Marietta Trounces To Elberton, 5-4 S'west DeKalb, 5-1

ELBERTON, Ga., May 11.—Coach Bob Lees, Elberton High Blue Devils defeated Georgia Frosh, 5 to 4, today in 11 innings. Aiken hit a home run for Elberton. Elberton got 10 hits and made four errors. Georgia Frosh obtained five hits and made two errors.

Leader of A's Sings Praises Of 3 Atlantans

Those three ex-Cracker hurlers you see above in characteristic poses are credited with boosting the Philadelphia Athletics to the topmost pinnacle at present in the American league race for pennant honors. Connie Mack, manager of the A's, in a special interview with Ralph McGill yesterday,

'Those Atlanta Boys Help a Lot'—Mack

"Youngsters Put Me Back on My Feet," Connie Says in Special Constitution Interview.

By RALPH MCGILL.

"My goodness," said Connie Mack, "those Atlanta boys have helped out a lot. My goodness, yes."

The grand old man of the Philadelphia Athletics called long distance to speak of his amazing club which yesterday slid into first place in the American league.

"The big fellow," he said, "that big boy Williams, he is a regular pitcher. He's a little wild. But he is a real prospect. I'm going to use him regularly and also to relieve. He's strong."

"It's very remarkable," said the old gentleman in his special interview with The Constitution, "and those Atlanta boys have had a great share in it."

"How about Bud Thomas?" "He's ready to go in his turn now," said Connie. "He was a bit wild. He gave eight bases on balls Monday, beating Tommy Bridges and Detroit. With that exception he had no trouble at all. My goodness, they are a surprising lot."

"And how's Harry Kelley?" "Kelley? Why, we look on him as an old leaguer. That's how young this club is. Harry is one of our old-timers. He looked good beating the Browns."

"What's happened to your club, anyhow?" "Well, they've surprised me. Goodness yes. They have the help from your former players. And they are a chattering lot. You ought to hear them. My, how they chatter out there. And they hustle all the time. They are having a lot of fun and playing good, hustling baseball. They are a fine lot of boys. They aren't beat until the last out. No, sir. My goodness, no."

told The Constitution sports editor via long distance telephone, that ex-Cracker hurlers were the secret of his team's early-season success. The players are, left to right, Almon Williams, Harry Kelley and Luther (Bud) Thomas. Williams and Thomas, members of the championship Atlanta teams of

'35 and '36, have won two games each as against no losses. Kelley, who went up two seasons ago and won 16 games for the Athletics in '36 before losing out because of an appendectomy, has won one game this year. These five victories represent exactly half of the A's total wins to date.

Larry Miller Shelled as Travelers Score Five in Ninth To Tie; Durham Wins.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 11.—Leave it to the Crackers and Travelers for wild ball games! Fans thought they had experienced the ultimate in thrills in Sunday's double-header which the teams divided, and in Monday night's third game which the Crackers won, 7-5, by staving off a ninth-inning rally. However, the boys staged a dramatic, stirring 10-inning affair here tonight that caused even the soft-drink peddlers to forget their peddling and view with amazement the events on the ball field. The Crackers won in the tenth inning, 8-7. But—

Little Rock came to bat in the ninth frame trailing, 7-2, with half of the crowd already filing beyond the exits. And glory be, if the weak-hitting Prothro didn't score five times and deadlock the count tighter than a young man's first pair of long pants!

The Crackers didn't like that as well as the home folks, and they went right out in their half of the tenth and scored the winning run. Paul Richards, pinch-hitting for Bobby Durham, drove Eddie Moore home with the decisive score. The Travelers got a man to second with two gone in their half, but their rallying was done for the night.

Larry Miller, rookie Cracker righthander, shared the same fate as did Ralph West, who started the night before. He pitched eight splendid innings, and then ran into all sorts of trouble, being yanked in that rousing ninth and replaced by Gordon Maltzberger. The latter hurler couldn't produce and before Bobby Durham could retire the side, five runs were home. Durham received credit for the win, although Jim Trexler, speedball lefthander, pitched the tenth inning for the champions. Little Rock used five pitchers.

FICTITIOUS SALES CITED IN LETTER

Note Says Friend of duPont 'Sold' Stocks for Income Tax Losses.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—Government counsel introduced at the Raskob-du Pont tax hearing today a letter tending to show the cross sales of stocks had been made by a friend of Pierre S. du Pont from an account guaranteed by him in order to establish losses for income tax purposes after the 1929 market crash.

Previous testimony has indicated that du Pont, accused by the government of engaging in fictitious sales with John J. Raskob for the same purpose, had guaranteed the accounts of a number of employees, up to a certain point, with E. C. Ferriday, a broker friend.

While declining to say what bearing, if any, it had on the case against du Pont, Mason B. Leming, chief of government counsel, presented a letter which he said Ferriday had written on December 26, 1929.

Addressed to du Pont but marked "attention of Frank A. McHugh," du Pont's office manager, it said in part:

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth fondled a six-foot king snake today, permitted it to crawl around her neck and shoulders, and, as a handful of visitors to the Cincinnati zoo gasped in amazement, she insisted "it's nothing."

thority and after a conference with Mr. McHugh, I sold out of the above account on Tuesday the following stocks. In order to recover losses for income tax purposes. These stocks were bought by my brother, Charley, who will carry them in his account until March 20, giving me the privilege of buying them back on that date at his purchase price."

U. S. PAYS TRIBUTE TO VICTIMS OF ZEP

28 Bodies of Germans To Be Sent Back to Native Land.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—Arms raised toward the sunset in Nazi salute, thousands of persons filed past 28 coffins tonight in the final American tribute to Germans who died in the Hindenburg inferno.

In the throng at the Hudson river pier of the Hamburg-American line, preparatory to sending home by water those who were to have gone by air, were about 20 survivors of the catastrophe, some of them still swathed in bandages.

The flag-draped coffins of their comrades lay in single file along the pier, and for two hours before the funeral ceremony the procession filed by, German societies and 500 members of the crew of the liner Hamburg.

Dr. Hans Luther, retiring German ambassador to Washington, and Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, American airship hero and commandant of the Lakehurst naval air station, where the Hindenburg plunged to earth in flames Thursday, delivered the principal eulogies.

QUESTIONING OF EXPERTS IS DELAYED IN PROBE
 LAKEHURST, N. J., May 11.—(AP)—From the audience that watched the flaming Hindenburg plummet to destruction, the Department of Commerce investigation board decided today today to seek the next accounts of the mysterious disaster which cost 25 lives.

At a private conference the three-man board agreed to defer its canvass of expert opinion on the disaster's probable cause and the examination of crew survivors until after the ground eyewitnesses have told their stories.

Public hearings will be resumed tomorrow.

Bees Pick Blank Wall as Swarming Spot

Here is shown a "swarm" of bees that settled yesterday on the brick wall of a building at the corner of Walton and Bartow streets. Miss Ella Grace Jones is seen making an apparently half-hearted attempt to entice the bees into the large box below the swarm. Her dilemma was solved when a group of negroes caught the bees and imprisoned them securely in the box. The name of the swarm's owner had not been learned last night.

'THE LAST ENEMY' OPENS RUN TODAY

Federal Theater of Atlanta To Present Peace Play for Seven Days.

Written to point out the horrors of death-dealing war machines, "The Last Enemy," by Frances Nimmo Greene and Robert H. Greene, is an intense study of how science battles the age-old story of war. The three-act play, which is a presentation of the Federal theater of Atlanta, will open tonight at the Atlanta theater, at 8:30 o'clock for a run of seven days.

Frances Nimmo Greene, co-author of "The Last Enemy," is one of the outstanding novelists and playwrights of the south. With John McGee she was joint author of the gigantic production "America Sings," which was produced at the Arkansas Centennial when President Roosevelt visited Little Rock last year. She is the author of many novels and plays, one of the former being "One Clear Call."

"The Last Enemy," seventh production by the Atlanta group, the Federal theater's contribution to the nation-wide drive for peace. Can one man stop the discovery of a death ray capable of annihilating entire armies? This and other questions of prime interest are raised when the curtain rises on "The Last Enemy."

With sets designed by Josef L. Lentz, the Federal acting group expects a production which will rival the recent "Altars of Steel," in so far as the staging and dramatic appeal are concerned. Clyde Waddell, director of the peace-play, enacts also the character son of John Larabee, shell-shocked son of Dr. Larabee, scientist. Into John's hands, and Harriet King's, his nurse whom he loves, is placed the immense responsibility of the fate of the death-ray, Dr. Larabee's invention.

Helen Stringfellow, a newcomer to the Atlanta stage, enacts the difficult role of the nurse, and Federal theater favorites who make up the supporting cast include William Nunn, Roy Elkins, Maurice Fain, Amasa B. Windham, Grady Barrow, Mildred Seals, Jack Barefield and Bailey Waller. Reservations for seats may be made at any time.

Recognition of their service in the Marist priesthood for 25 years will be accorded the Rev. James T. Reilly, pastor of Sacred Heart church, and the Rev. Edward McGrath, assistant pastor, in special rites honoring the two divines beginning at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

A solemn pontifical mass will be said at the church this morning and the Rt. Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, bishop of the Savannah-Atlanta diocese, will deliver the sermon.

Knights of St. Gregory and Fourth Degree Knights, in full regalia, will participate in the services.

Duggan, and Mrs. Duggan will receive the doctor of science degree at Clemson College tomorrow in recognition of outstanding service rendered in the field of agricultural science.

Professor Duggan is an assistant to Cully A. Cobb, director of the Soil Conservation Service for the southern states. He is an alumnus of Clemson College and of Ohio State University.

He is a grandson of the late Dr. Ivey W. Duggan, who for a half century was an eminent Georgia educator.

SHUTDOWN IS SEEN IN TEXTILE PLANTS

Industry Accused of 'Break-neck' Production To Penalize Union Men.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—A house labor subcommittee heard a union leader declare today that the giant textile industry is heading toward a complete midsummer shutdown as the result of "break-neck" production ordered to penalize organizing workers.

Francis J. Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers, told the committee the shutdown would come within three months unless congress acts in the meantime to regulate the industry.

He testified at a hearing on the bill by Representative Ellenbogen, Pennsylvania Democrat, to create a "little NRA" for textiles.

Discussing his union's campaign to complete organization of textile workers, the witness said it was backed by John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization and had a $1,000,000 campaign fund contributed by Lewis allies.

Meanwhile Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, proposed a law to prohibit the interstate transportation of persons hired to disturb peaceful picketing of strikers or to interfere with the right of employees to organize for collective bargaining.

DOCTORS OF STATE CONVENE IN MACON

Progress Is Reported in Campaigns Against Cancer, Syphilis.

MACON, Ga., May 11.—(AP)—Delegates at the opening meeting of the Medical Association of Georgia's 88th annual session here today heard reports of progress in the fight against cancer and a plethoric organization of a war on syphilis.

Dr. James L. Campbell, Atlanta, chairman of the association's cancer commission, told delegates "more work for cancer control has been accomplished since our last meeting than during any previous year."

Later in the afternoon, the house of delegates, meeting in the Macon auditorium, heard Dr. C. W. Roberts, Atlanta, chairman of the advisory committee to the State Board of Health, ask a study of syphilis in Georgia.

During the same meeting, Dr. James E. Paulin, Atlanta, chairman of a subcommittee on compilation of medical economics, told the delegates Georgia's rural death rate is almost half that of the nation.

Afternoon Session.
 The afternoon session, open only to official delegates to the annual convention, was devoted almost entirely to committee and official reports.

In his report, Dr. Campbell said 15,000 copies of an address prepared and approved by the cancer commission had been distributed as part of its lay education program. He expressed appreciation to newspapers of the state and to the Associated Press for their "courteous" reception of material sent them by the commission.

The chairman also reviewed the work of the Georgia woman's field army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, which, he said, had obtained a membership of 4,200 during the drive early this spring. He said similar drives will be conducted annually in Georgia during the week preceding Easter.

Sally Forth Records Engagement Of Peggy Kemper, Cain Mitchell

By Sally Forth.

SALLY FORTH is rarely accorded more pleasure than is afforded her today in announcing the engagement of Ruth Margaret Kemper, lovingly known as Peggy, to William Cameron Mitchell. Although the formal announcement is made by her parents, Colonel and Mrs. James Brown Kemper, U. S. A., retired, of Manchester, N. H., the news of the betrothal carries widespread interest among military and civilian social circles here.

Peggy has spent the greater part of the year at Fort McPherson, where she visited her uncle and aunt, Colonel and Mrs. Robert Dunlop. One evening last February her friend, Martha DeGolian, invited her to play bridge with her and her cousin, Jack Butler, and the "extra man" was Cam Mitchell. blind date romances which lead to romance and the altar, and since that evening Cam has paid court to the pretty young army girl. Her family leaves soon for the Kemper home in New Hampshire, but Cam has persuaded Peggy to remain here until next fall when their marriage takes place.

The bride-elect comes from a long line of distinguished forbears who have been prominent figures in the army. Her mother is the former Miss Mercer Mason, daughter of Mrs. Lucy Old Mason and John Sandford Mason, who at the time of his death held a lieutenantancy. Mrs. Mason is the daughter of General E. O. C. Old, of the distinguished Maryland family. The Mason-line is one of the oldest army families in the country, dating back to 1630.

Colonel Kemper, father of the bride-elect, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Carr Kemper, of an old and distinguished Virginia family who were among pioneer settlers in Ohio. He retired from the army a little over a year ago after an outstanding career which carried him for duty all over the United States and to many foreign lands.

Due to the changing army detail, Peggy has enjoyed an adventurous life in various states and countries. She graduated from Vassar last year. In addition she is an accomplished pianist and is gifted in dramatic art, having taken a leading part in the recent production of "The Pursuit of Happiness," staged by the Atlanta Theater Guild. She is a sister of Lieutenant John Mason Kemper, of Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indianapolis, and Mrs. John Kirkland Rice, wife of Major Rice, of Washington, D. C.

Cam Mitchell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Mitchell, who reside on Andrews drive, and is a brother of Elizabeth, Graham, Duncan and Glynn Mitchell. He is a graduate of Auburn in the class of 1935 and later did graduate work at Boston Tech, where he served as president of the Sigma Nu fraternity. He is a member of the Beaver Club and was managing editor of the Voo-Doo, the college publication. His father is a prominent figure in business circles, being vice president and general manager of the Georgia Power Company.

AT LAST Patsy Spalding Hodgson and Peggy Alston Refoule have seen each other after traveling in France for months without knowledge of the other's whereabouts. Each lost the other's address, and each forgot the other's married name, so they had to write all the way home to obtain this information. Of course when they received their answers, they immediately got together. Patsy and her husband, Morton, are living in Paris, you know, where the young Atlanta man has a fine position. Peggy and Paul Refoule reside in Orleans, which is near Paris, and you can imagine what a sweet time Patsy and Peggy have discussing the latest news from far-away Atlanta.

ANOTHER Georgian attaining success in musical realms is Lucile Bowden, whose piano interpretations have made her an outstanding artist. Atlantans hearing Miss Bowden play at the tea given recently by Mrs. Granger Hansell predict a brilliant career for this young Georgia pianist, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Akers Bowden, of Thomson, Ga.

Miss Bowden prefers intimate salon music as her medium, and her exquisite technique and the delicacy of her interpretation are at their best on such occasions. Miss Bowden's work was enthusiastically applauded at the

Miss Jackson and Mr. Speights Wed at Decatur Home Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Mildred Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan Jackson, of Decatur, to John Milton Speights, of Savannah, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents on Kings' highway.

Dr. D. P. McGeachy, of Decatur Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and close friends. Douglas Wauchop rendered appropriate musical numbers and Miss Myra Barber sang "I Love You Truly."

An altar of palms and ferns was arranged in front of the mantel with baskets of Easter lilies and seven-branched candelabra placed at intervals.

Miss Ruth Jackson, sister of the bride and Miss Mary Frances Speights, sister of the groom, lighted the tapers. They were gowns fashioned alike and their flowers were shoulder clusters of roses and sweet peas. Miss Jackson wore rose mouseline de soie over taffeta and Miss Speights' gown was of blue mouseline veiling taffeta.

Miss Margaret Jackson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and she wore a gown of peach mouseline de soie fashioned with puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of roses, snapdragons and carnations.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, John Ryan Jackson, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Russell Speights, who served as best man. The bride's gown was fashioned of white lace over satin. The bodice featured a square neckline and long-fitted sleeves. The skirt flared to the floor and ended at the back with a train. Her tulle veil was finger-tip length and was fitted to her hair with a coronet of pearls with clusters of orange blossoms on either side. She carried bride's roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Jackson, mother of the bride, wore powder blue lace with a shoulder spray of pink roses and sweet peas. Mrs. Speights, the groom's mother, was gowned in black chiffon and her flowers were roses and sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson entertained at an informal reception after the marriage.

Mrs. L. W. Adams, Misses Maude Baker, Ora Craig and Jean Rathborne assisted.

Mr. Speights and his bride left in the early evening for a wedding trip, after which they will reside in Savannah.

Miss Farmer Weds Mr. Hollis Jr.

MEDICINE, DRUGS TO GET EMPHASIS

Pharmacy Association Chief Sees Growing Trend From Sideline Articles.

H. S. Peters, of Manchester, president of the Georgia Pharmaceutical Association, predicted yesterday that in the future drug stores will place greater emphasis on filling prescriptions and selling medicines than on sideline articles.

In an interview between sessions of the 62d annual convention of the association, Peters expressed the belief, however, that the soda fountain will stay. "That has always been a part of the business from the beginning," he declared. This coming year the association will concentrate on enforcing provisions of the fair trade law passed by the state legislature at its last session, he said. One of the provisions of the law prohibits the "loss leader sale."

Passage of the law was a cardinal objective of the association last year, the president said, "and this year we are going to get behind it and see that it is enforced." More than 500 druggists registered for the opening day's sessions, and additional hundreds were expected before adjournment of the three-day convention.

Yesterday's sessions were taken up with addresses of welcome by Atlanta officials and drug store leaders and routine reports, Peters said.

England has established a National Maritime Museum at Greenwich, to hold relics and art illustrating its sea-faring history.

Women Voters Anxious to Fathom Confusion at Council's Meetings

City Elders, Informally Replying to Question, Insist All
Legislative Deliberations Entail Considerable Disturbance
With Careful Thought to Govern Answers.

What causes confusion in city council meetings?

That is what the Atlanta League of Women Voters wants to know and today councilmen will receive a questionnaire from the women's organization asking that specific question and how to remedy it.

Councilmen questioned informally by newspapermen yesterday before they received the questionnaire said in effect that confusion always accompanies action of legislative bodies and exhibited no surprise that it does.

"You will always have confusion in council until you separate the administrative and the legislative claimed wards are the salvation of Atlanta's government.

But others said "something should be done about it." They plan to think up their answers carefully before replying to the league's questions.

TECH SPORTS PAY PROFIT OF $25,075

Admission Total of $140,236
Reported to Governor by Auditor Wisdom.

A total of $140,236.90 in admissions was taken in by Georgia Tech at football games during 1936, an audit filed yesterday with Governor Rivers by State Auditor Tom Wisdom revealed.

Disbursements for guarantees, however, reduced receipts to a net $82,860.20.

Basketball games brought in $887.05 but track events showed a loss of $100 and minor sports cost $109.50. Rents and interest ran the total receipts to $96,650 net for the year.

Among expense items were $43,264 for salaries, $7,392 for travel expense, $6,137 for equipment and material, $1,541 for printing and publicity, $1,360 for insurance, $4,175 for interest and $5,775 for miscellaneous items.

The year showed profit of $25,075, compared to $15,211 for 1935. The current deficit was cut from $79,435 to $54,763.

SENIORITY BATTLE BRINGS INJUNCTION

Georgia Railroad Engineers
Secure Temporary Bar
Against Co-Worker.

A fight among engineers on the Georgia railroad over seniority rankings yesterday reached Fulton superior court when three train pilots obtained a temporary injunction preventing Engineer L. J. West from operating trains and being listed ahead of petitioners. The petition was filed by C. M. Ray, H. P. Campbell and J. E. Gunter and named the Georgia railroad, L. J. West and the seniority board as defendants.

Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr., set May 14 as date for hearing on a permanent injunction.

The petitioners allege West was employed in 1918 by the railroad but discharged in 1920. Recently he was re-employed and placed on the seniority as of 1918, petitioners contend. They contend he should follow in line as of May 7, date of his second employment.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Sincerity is the severest form of flattery.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

STANLEY'S ADVENTURES IN AFRICA.

VIII—More About the Pygmies. Plantains, the banana-like fruit found in the tropics, did more than anything else to save Stanley's party from starving during their long, hard marches through the pygmy country in central Africa.

They lifted the chest.

Sometimes, on those marches, they had to cut their way through the mass of plant life, using knives, sickles and axes. Troops of monkeys swung themselves from tree to tree, and chattered from the limbs overhead. Sunbirds, gray parrots, white-collared eagles, and other birds screamed and called as the explorers made their way along.

One day a pygmy man was captured and brought to camp. He was about 21 years old, but measured just four feet in height. His skin was of copper color. On his head he wore a bunch of parrot feathers. Using sign-language, he told the men who had captured him how to reach a place where they would find plenty of plantains.

On the evening of another day, five men were sent out to pick up a box containing ammunition. The box had been left a short distance away by natives who had grown tired of carrying it.

The five men walked toward the place where the box had been left when they heard the noise of many persons talking. Looking ahead of them, they saw some pygmies who had gathered around the ammunition box. They were trying to lift it, but were not able to do so. All of them seemed to be trying to tell how to perform the trick.

At length certain of the little men came to the scene with a long pole, and passed it under the ropes around the box. This made it possible for them to lift and carry it. When they had gone only a few yards, one of Stanley's scouts raised his gun and fired into the air. The noise frightened the pygmies, so they dropped their load and ran away.

Here, in shortened form, are paragraphs Stanley wrote about pygmy customs. Their homes are low-roofed, and of oval shape. The doors are from two to three feet high. The huts in a village are placed in a circle, and at the center of the circle is the home of the chief and his family.

"The pygmies live in the forests. They have a fine knowledge of woodcraft. They are of value to the larger natives because they quickly learn about the coming of strangers and send warnings over the whole region.

"As weapons they use little bows and arrows, the tips of which are covered with poison. They also carry spears. With their poisoned weapons they kill elephants, buffaloes and antelopes. They dig pits and cover them with sticks, as traps for large animals. They spread nuts and ripe plantains on the ground, and when the bait is eaten by monkeys and apes, a shed-like covering drops from above and imprisons them."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion and Greatest Card Analyst

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

THE PENALTY PASS.
As a general rule, a double of one no trump should be passed whenever there are any grounds for passing. A double of a suit bid should be passed only when the penalty is sure and the chance for a game remote.

Penalty Pass of One No Trump.
A take-out double of one no trump should be passed when the doubler's partner holds one and one-half or more honor tricks. In some cases he should pass even with one or one-plus honor tricks, if he has some strength, queen or jack, in at least three suits.

A nonjump take-out of a doubled one no trump bid usually shows weakness.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The spade jack came out and East's king went to my ace. I could see that six-odd depended on establishing a squeeze position and that in order to do so it would be necessary to give up a trick immediately to gain the proper timing. It seemed better tactics to lose this trick in hearts rather than clubs, so my first lead was the heart four. And now for a review of West's mental processes during the next few minutes, which he gladly furnished me gratis after the hand had been played.

"What's that palooka (he meant me, the declarer) up to? Leading to the jack, hoping I hold the lady, and won't go up? Up she goes! Well, what's that eight spot from partner? A signal or the card nearest his thumb? Let's see now. This has all the earmarks of an impending spade war. South must have the heart and club aces, and certainly the queen and small spade. After those diamonds are run, I'll have to hold spades and partner will have to guard hearts. Gee! Neither of us will be able to keep clubs. Well, I'd better take that club entry away from South, pronto! South can't have ace-jack of clubs, because then he'd have 12 tricks by clearing the club king. So, speaking of the club king, here he goes!"

"As can be readily seen, the lead of the club king at this point effectively spiked my guns. If a spade had been returned the fall of the eight from East's hand would have indicated clearly the proper play (to cash the heart ace before running off diamonds) and a heart return would have cost me this almost automatic. In either case, as anticipated by my disgustingly astute opponent, the double squeeze would have flowered in all its rare beauty at the eleventh trick. See the pretty picture below and join me in a gentle gasp. Dummy's last diamond would have gouged a club from both defendants.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

The country through which they were now passing was rough and barren. Bleak mountains loomed in the distance and the sun was setting behind them. The coupe was mud-spattered from the narrow and deeply rutted roads which they were taking in their stride.

Dressed in a pair of comfortably dirty slacks and an open shirt, Norman was whistling happily as he contemplated the two days of domestic bliss that were behind them. He was paying the least possible attention to his driving and was listening to the slightly off-key accompaniment to his whistling which proceeded from the trailer. The tantalizing aroma of frying steak reached him and his mind conjured up the picture of Esther, in her jodhpurs and sweater, daintily preparing his evening meal.

As a matter of fact, Esther was making heavy weather of her cooking. Not only was the galley of miniature dimensions, but the trailer was rocking and heaving like a boat in a rough sea.

Suddenly the car and the trailer lurched and came to a dead stop. Simultaneously, Norman's whistling and dreaming stopped; and so did Esther's culinary activities.

The car was hopelessly bogged in the mud. Norman, rudely awakened from his trance, was immediately spurred to action. He watched the slogging of the spinning wheels and made desperate efforts to pull out of the mire. But he had to admit to himself that an expert was needed. Even a major catastrophe could not ruffle his even temper these days.

He continued whistling as he swaggered back to the rear end of his traveling household. When he peeped into the trailer Esther was sprawled on the floor, the frying pan still in her hand. With her free hand she was trying to rescue the steak. She looked up at him from her sitting position.

"I don't want to sound immodest," he declared, "seemingly very pleased with myself, but I think I've stripped a gear."

"Very funny," she retorted sourly. She indicated the dusty steak and the empty frying pan. "Does that mean we're here for the winter?"

"Oh, there may be a car along in a couple of months," he answered airily.

"That's just dandy," she rose from her undignified position and straightened her clothing. Then she faced him and said with elaborately ironical cordiality: "Come in, won't you and let's get acquainted. We'll probably be seeing you again."

Part of the plumbing fixture had come away and Norman was being drowned in a great deluge of water.

His cries were intermingled with the distant sound of an approaching car.

"Norman, here comes a car," cried Esther, disregarding the anguished calls of Norman, who was getting his shower with a vengeance. She snatched up a bathrobe and a pair of slippers.

"Here quick!" she shouted, handing him the clothing.

"Quick what?" He was making an effort to wipe the few remaining drops of what that remained in the damaged fixture.

"Go out and stop them and ask for help."

"I don't need any help," he protested. "I've had my shower."

"To get us out of the mud, you goose," she said.

"Oh, but they'll recognize me." "Not if you keep your face down," she answered defiantly, tugging at him.

"But I'll catch cold," he persisted.

She opened the door and shoved him through it. "You'll get warm again," she said, giving him a final push and closing the door so that there was no returning for him. "There may not be another car for weeks."

She ran to a window to see if he managed the rescue properly. An ancient Ford, driven by a white-haired native, had drawn up to their equipage. The rustic stopped, took in the scene calmly and did not blink at the unconventional attire which Norman sported. He took time to insert some chewing tobacco into his large mouth before speaking.

"Hello, pardner," he offered at last. "Stuck?"

"How'd you guess?" He saw Esther quite a lot of each other from now on.

He accepted this with a philosophical calmness that irritated her. "We might as well break the ice now as later on," he said.

He had taken her in his arms and was kissing her hungrily. "That's all I need to keep me happy," he said. "Oh, Esther, haven't these been glorious days. I could stay here forever, if you'd just say the word."

For answer she held him tightly. She, too, had never known before what it meant to be in complete harmony with events. It was possible to challenge the future with renewed vigor and courage, now that there were two of them to do the fighting. It was grand to taste success, but it was infinitely more important to be close to Norman and to go on to greater things with him.

"Say, have I got time for a shower before dinner?" he asked, suddenly changing the subject.

"That's all you'll have for dinner—if you can find the shower." "Does it pull out or slide under? I never can remember where it is."

Together they went in search of the shower, making of it a grim business, like two persons on a treasure hunt. At last she found it.

"Nice work," he congratulated her.

"Oh, half the time these things are just luck. I'll see what I can do about our dusty dinner."

She went back in the galley and turned her attention to the cooking, but it was not to be as easy as all that. Norman's plaintive calls interrupted her first a peremptory demand for soap, then a pleading request for a wash rag.

She catered to him patiently, enjoying her role of the perfect wife, being nicely petulant and giving him to understand that at heart she really loved his masculine helplessness in important things like knowing where the soap is.

At the third interruption she became cuttlingly solicitous. "How are you fixed for cigarettes?" she asked.

"You know I never smoke under water," he answered reproachfully. "By the way, where is the water? What do I do to make the thing work?"

"Pull that gadget at the top and pray for rain. But if you've gone in there with your arms down, you'll never get your bath. That is, unless you're a contortionist."

He called from the shower with wounded dignity. "I'm not a contortionist. And don't throw that up now. You knew it when you married me. . . . Ouch! Help!"

"Now what?"

"Part of the plumbing fixture had come away and Norman was being drowned in a great deluge of water."

His cries were intermingled with the distant sound of an approaching car.

"Norman, here comes a car," cried Esther, disregarding the anguished calls of Norman, who was getting his shower with a vengeance. She snatched up a bathrobe and a pair of slippers.

She ran to a window to see if he managed the rescue properly. An ancient Ford, driven by a white-haired native, had drawn up to their equipage. The rustic stopped, took in the scene calmly and did not blink at the unconventional attire which Norman sported. He took time to insert some chewing tobacco into his large mouth before speaking.

"Hello, pardner," he offered at last. "Stuck?"

"How'd you guess?" He saw Esther at the window and he averted his face with elaborate precaution so that he would not be recognized by the driver of the Ford.

The unwilling savior was silent again, not making the expected offer of aid.

"Can you get us some help?" Norman tried again.

The rustic shook his head. "Well I reckon not. It's a long ways to town and we're pretty busy down at the place."

"But I've got to get out of here!" Norman said in desperation. "I have my wife with me."

"Don't she like the kentry?" the wide beard jerked up and down, the only expression of emotion visible in the man. He seemed offended that they should resent being stuck in this particular mud.

"No, my wife hates the country," Norman answered shortly. "And I'm afraid we're short of food." There must be some way to arouse the compassion of this bearded misanthrope.

"Lots of game in these woods," he offered helpfully.

"My wife can't shoot."

"You sure are up against it. Sorry I don't do anything for you." He opened the throttle of his car and prepared to drive on.

Norman was desperate now. He had been certain that eventually the man would listen to reason. Where was the rural hospitality he had heard so much about? He turned to the window of the trailer and semaphored his complete helplessness. Esther was motionless. At last he interpreted it and his face lit up as he flashed an admiring thanks for her suggestion.

He jumped on the running board of the Ford. "Listen," he said, "I'll be frank with you. I'm Norman Maine."

No impression.

"Norman Maine."

The rustic busied himself with the throttle again. "My name's Jud Baker," he said. "Glad to have met you."

The Ford went rattling irretrievably down the rutted road. Grasping the ends of the bathrobe's belt he watched the rear of the car dazedly and then walked dejectedly toward the entrenched trailer.

Esther was convulsed with laughter as he entered the trailer. "So you're Norman Maine!" she greeted him. "What is it you do again?"

He joined in the laughter at his own expense.

"Well at any rate we've reached the ultimate in vacation thrills. We weren't recognized even though we begged for it. Now I've seen everything and I'm willing to go back home."

"Cross your heart now, how does it feel to meet some one who never heard of you?"

"Terrible, darling. Even worse than meeting some one who has heard of you."

"And I didn't think you cared!" They sat down to eat the salvaged remnants of their meal, ears cocked to catch the welcome sound of an approaching car.

"I wanted to get away from people," Esther sighed. "I didn't want to be buried on the lone prairie. Norman, I'm suddenly homesick. What's our next picture going to be?"

"Oliver will have it all set out for us when he gets through spluttering about our taking more than the allotted week for our little junket."

"I was so scared working together with you," she said tenderly. "Now it will be fun."

"I hope you always think so."

Aid came in the form of a moving van lumbering along the other direction. They abandoned the trailer and sat beside the garulous driver who let them out at the next railroad depot.

"The surprises for today are just beginning," he announced when they had reached Hollywood. "Wait until you see what 'The Enchanted Hour' brought us."

He had called up for his roadster, which was brought to the station. Norman took the wheel and drove out to Beverly Hills. He pointed to a large house, set well in from the drive.

S. C. SELONS STUDY CONFERENCE REPORT ON APPROPRIATIONS

New Measure Is Compromise on Senate and House Proposals.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 11.—(AP) The free conference committee report on the general appropriations bill for 1938, carrying $1,326,073.26, an eight months' state-aid school term and a graduated scale of teachers' pay raises, but levying no new revenue was tonight placed on the desks of general assembly members.

It was a compromise between the $10,814,000 senate bill and the $9,588,000 measure passed by the house.

The five-week deadlock between house and senate conferees was broken when they agreed to continue both extension of the seven-month state-aid school term to eight months and a graduated scale for increased teachers' pay.

FLORIDANS SEEK

New "SLOT" BILL

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 11.—(AP)—Senate conferees today killed house-approved bills to outlaw slot machines in Florida and voted to introduce a substitute bill permitting operation of "automatic amusement devices" which Senator Ernest Graham, of Miami, said would be slot machines by another name.

The committee substitute measure would authorize state-wide operation of "automatic amusement devices," skill machines, merchandise vendors and the like so long as they were not slot machines of the type now in use.

James Roosevelt Flies Part Way To Meet F.D.R.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 11.—(AP)—James Roosevelt, his brief case packed with papers for his father to sign, hurried through Memphis tonight en route to Fort Worth to meet President Roosevelt. He alighted from a plane at the airport and 15 minutes later boarded a train for Texas.

"Father doesn't like for me to fly at night," he explained. "It makes him worry."

LIQUOR IS DENIED PARDON IN TENNESSEE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 11.—(AP)—Liquor, outlawed from Tennessee 28 years ago, was denied a pardon today.

The house of representatives, by a vote of 52 to 42, killed a bill that would have permitted its return on a local option basis.

WOES INCREASE

Broker's Offer To Pay $750 Fine Refused.

MIAMI, Fla., May 11.—(UP)—The legal woes of John D. Crews, Miami bond broker and husband of golfer Maureen O'Connell, increased when the sheriff's office refused his offer to pay a $750 fine for contempt of court today.

Crews, who was arrested today, was released, however, when his attorneys posted $1,000 bond on a new charge in which he is accused of embezzling an $18,000 diamond ring.

Circuit Judge Atkinson, who signed Crews' release, set a hearing for Friday.

MIAMI MAYOR UPSET IN RE-ELECTION BID

MIAMI, Fla., May 11.—(AP)—The electorate named today an osteopath, an attorney and a grocer to Miami's city commission, rejecting the bid for re-election of Mayor A. D. H. Fossey and Commissioner E. G. Sewell.

Dr. Ralph B. Ferguson, with a thousand votes to spare for the lead, was victorious along with Attorney John W. Du Bose and Grocer R. C. Gardner.

W. R. Becker was fourth. Commissioner Sewell, twice mayor and for 25 years in the political forefront, was fifth. Mayor Fossey, sixth, won 2,300 votes to Dr. Ferguson's 9,300.

ANGLE-PARKING SOUGHT IN TENTH STREET AREA

Petition of 50 Tenth street section merchants asking angle parking on Peachtree between Tenth and Eleventh streets was exhibited yesterday by Councilman John A. White, who said he would introduce a paper at the next council meeting to allow angle parking where the county recently widened Peachtree street.

Mayor Hartsfield vetoed a council-approved ordinance allowing angle parking because it was pointed out that traffic conditions would not be improved on the street.

The cars parked angle-wise were allowed to block through-traffic on the important thoroughfare, Alderman Frank H. Reynolds opposed angle parking.

N. Y. ACTORS PROTEST STAGE SHOW BILL

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—Stars in all of Broadway's 21 dramas and musical comedies stopped their shows tonight. Just before last act curtains were to be raised, lights were brightened and leading players stepped out of character with uniform protests against the so-called Duggan bill, passed recently by the state legislature and now before the governor.

Reading from script prepared by the League of New York Theaterers, they said the measure which would give License Commissioner Paul Moss the power to close any show that he considers "immoral," will "spell the doom of free thinking and free speech on the stage."

LABOR DIFFICULTIES BESET INDUSTRIES

Strike Showdown Awaited in Steel Plants; Film Studios Guarded.

By the Associated Press. Two of the nation's leading industries—steel and motion pictures—wrestled yesterday with persistent labor troubles.

A showdown was awaited at Cleveland to determine whether union workers will strike at plants of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation and those of other leading independent producers. The steel workers organizing committee discussed CIO organization with the Republic Steel Corporation at Pittsburgh, but reported no progress.
